EXPLOSIVES AND WEAPONS ON PRISONERS

LAWRENCE, Jan. 20.—Seven alleged dynamiters were arrested here this afternoon in connection with the textile strike. Two of the prisoners are women.

Seven sticks of dynamite, a box of cartridges and a lot of fuses were found.

The arrests were made following information that came from the North End in Boston and from New York by long distance telephone.

The prisoners were all taken at No. 292 Oak street on the first floor of which a small tailoring establishment is kept by Faris Marad, a special policeman and one of the leaders of the parade on Thursday. Marad was one of the seven prisoners. In his possession was found a revolver.

RECENT ARRIVALS IN LAWRENCE.

The other prisoners, all of whom came to Lawrence lately, were Joseph Assas, Trinidad Bushon, Mare Reshed, David Bishara, Mrs. Zelka Reshed and Miss Mary Swizy.

All of the prisoners are Syrians. Assas is said to have come here from Pawtucket a short time ago. Bushon was about to leave the city and it was said that he was going to Porto Rico. The other prisoners were said to come from Fishkill, N. Y.

Bishara talked freely when he was arrested. He denied any knowledge of the dynamite in the house.

"I was in the tailor shop last evening," he said. "A couple of Syrians came along with a bundle. They asked me if they could leave it there until this afternoon, and I said 'sure.' They left the bundle and it was thrown under the sink."

Discovery of Dynamite.

The arrests were made by Inspectors Kelleher, Byron, Mulhare, Vose, Woodcock, Rooney, Cavanaro and former City Marshal Murphy. The sticks of dynamite found are about eight inches long and each one is sufficient to blow up a building.

Inspector Rooney of Boston conferred immediately after arriving from Boston to-day with Mayor Scanlon, Police Commissioner Lynch, Immigration Inspector F. A. Gordon of Washington and members of the State police. Those present refused to divulge any information as to the matters discussed. It was later learned that a dynamite plot had been unearthed in which the principals were known to the authorities.

The life of Mayor Scanlon has been threatened, and all day to-day the Mayor was carefully guarded by policemen in plain clothes. The lives of Agent Walter E. Parker of the mills and of President William M. Wood were also threatened.

Two women and five men were arrested and locked up in the police station on the charge that they had dynamite in their possession and were to use it in connection with the strike. The arrests were made in the rear of No. 294 Oak street. A whole outfit for dynamiting purposes was found at the place the arrests were made. The prisoners were said to be Syrians.

Warnings of danger received here from New York, coincident with the arrival of Italian detectives from that city and from Boston, threw Lawrence into a furore of excitement when the facts became known.

It was believed that the warnings were to the effect that Lawrence, Boston and other cities near here that are in any way connected with the big textile strike should be on the lookout for violence.

Sweetser Again Sees Ettor.

Following the receipt of the telephoned information Colonel Sweetser jumped into his automobile and was whirled to the Franco-Belgian Building where Joseph J. Ettor, leader of the strike, was found. This was the second interview Colonel Sweetser had to-day with Ettor.

Colonel Sweetser, speaking with a determined ring in his voice and so distinctly that every one in the room could hear, began his conversation with this question:

"Mr. Ettor, you are the leader of this strike, aren't you?"

"Well, yes, I am," replied Ettor.

Warns Leader Ettor.

"Now, Mr. Ettor, I'm going to tell you something. You are held personally responsible for any breach of the peace committed. You are held responsible for any lawlessness that may result from this strike, and, more than that, this lawlessness does not mean what takes place here in Lawrence only, but lawlessness and violence outside of this city."

"What do you mean by that, Colonel?" Ettor asked.

"I mean just what I say," replied Colonel Sweetser, "and you are capable of understanding it."

Having delivered this warning to Ettor, Colonel Sweetser returned [illegible]

DON'T MISS THE GREATEST SHERLOCK HOLMES STORY EVER WRITTEN. HERE IT IS!

THE CROOKED MAN—A Sherlock Holmes Mystery

By A. CONAN DOYLE.

(Copyright, 1893, by A. Conan Doyle.)
(Copyright, 1894, by Harper & Brothers.)

ONE Summer night, a few months after my marriage, I was seated by my own hearth smoking a last pipe and nodding over a novel, for my day's work had been an exhausting one. My wife had already gone upstairs, and the sound of the locking of the hall door some time before told me that the servants had also retired. I had risen from my seat and was knocking out the ashes of my pipe when I suddenly heard the clang of the bell.

I looked at the clock. It was a quarter to twelve. This could not be a visitor at so late an hour. A patient, evidently, and possibly an all-night sitting. With a wry face I went out into the hall and opened the door. To my astonishment it was Sherlock Holmes who stood upon my step.

"Ah, Watson," said he, "I hoped that I might not be too late to catch you."

"My dear fellow, pray come in."

"You look surprised, and no wonder! Relieved, too, I fancy! Hum! You still smoke the Arcadia mixture of your bachelor days then! There's no mistaking that fluffy ash upon your coat. It's easy to tell that you have been accustomed to wear a uniform, Watson. You'll never pass as a pure-bred civilian as long as you keep that habit of carrying your handkerchief in your sleeve. Could you put me up to-night?"

"With pleasure."

"You told me that you had bachelor quarters for one, and I see that you have no gentleman visitor at present. Your hat-stand proclaims as much."

"I shall be delighted if you will stay."

"Thank you. I'll fill the vacant peg then. Sorry to see that you've had the British workman in the house. He's a token of evil. Not the drains, I hope?"

"No, the gas."

"Ah! He has left two nail-marks from his boot upon your linoleum just where the light strikes it. No, thank you, I had some supper at Waterloo, but I'll smoke a pipe with you with pleasure."

I handed him my pouch, and he seated himself opposite to me and smoked for some time in silence. I was well aware that nothing but business of importance would have brought him to me at such an hour, so I waited patiently until he should come round to it.

"I see that you are professionally rather busy just now," said he glancing very keenly across at me.

"Yes, I've had a busy day," I answered. "It may seem very foolish in your eyes," I added, "but really I don't know how you deduced it."

Holmes chuckled to himself.

"I have the advantage of knowing your habits, my dear Watson," said he. "When your round is a short one you walk, and when it is a long one you use a hansom. As I perceive that your boots, although used, are by no means dirty, I cannot doubt that you are at present busy enough to justify the hansom."

"Excellent!" I cried.

"Elementary," said he. "It is one of those instances where the reasoner can produce an effect which seems remarkable to his neighbor, because the latter has missed the one little point which is the basis of the deduction. The same may be said, my dear fellow, for the effect of some of these little sketches of yours, which is entirely meretricious, depending as it does upon your retaining in your own hands some factors in the problem which are never imparted to the reader. Now, at present I am in the position of these same readers, for I hold in this hand several threads of one of the strangest cases which ever perplexed a man's brain, and yet I lack the one or two which are needful to complete my theory. But I'll have them, Watson, I'll have them!" His eyes kindled and a slight flash sprang into his thin cheeks. For an instant the veil had lifted upon his keen, intense nature. For an instant only. When I glanced again his face had resumed that red-Indian composure which had made so many regard him as a machine rather than a man.

"The problem presents features of interest," said he. "I may even say exceptional features of interest. I have already looked into the matter, and have come, as I think, within sight of my solution. If you could accompany me in that last step you might be of considerable service to me."

"I should be delighted."

This story will be printed in full in To-morrow's Sunday AMERICAN, as the first of a series of Sherlock Holmes stories, which will be a regular feature of the Sunday AMERICAN each week hereafter.

3 DORCHESTER FIRE RESCUES

George, Albert and Herbert Smith, ranging in ages from ten months to three and one-half years, were rescued by their grandmother, Mrs. Dora Tanenbaum, to-day, in a fire that partially destroyed the dwelling house at No. 21 Walcott street, causing a damage of $1,500.

Eighteen-year-old Mollie Tannenbaum rushed upstairs, through the smoke to save her wardrobe, which was stored in a room in the attic.

The fire originated in the attic of the house, which is a two-story wooden structure. The cause is unknown.

Mrs. Tanenbaum, the grandmother, the three children and Mollie Tanenbaum were the only persons in the house. Albert, who is nine months old, was with his grandmother. George and Herbert were upstairs in the playroom, which adjoins the room in which the fire started.

The fire was discovered by Mrs. Tenenbaum. She at once carried Albert to the street. Then rushing back into the house she ran upstairs through the smoke and, taking George in one arm and Herbert in the other, carried them to the street.

The house is owned and occupied by Harry B. Smith and their three children. With them live Mrs. Tanenbaum, mother of Mrs. Smith, and her sister Mollie.

Mrs. Tanenbaum and Mollie are prostrated as the result of their thrilling experiences. The second floor and the attic are badly damaged by fire and water.

MORE BODIES IN THE REVERE HOUSE RUINS

Two more bodies, so badly burned that identification was impossible, were found in the ruins of the Revere House, which was destroyed by fire early Tuesday. It was believed the remains were those of two women employes who have been missing since the fire. One body, that of a woman, was recovered from the ruins two days ago.

Medical Examiner Magrath, who viewed both bodies, was of the opinion they were the remains of Susan Doherty and Annie McDevitt, two women domestics employed in the hotel. It was thought that the body found Thursday was that of Miss McDevitt, but investigations made by the medical examiner this afternoon showed that the first body recovered was in all likelihood that of Gertrude Wilson, the third of the three missing women.

Medical Examiner Magrath learned from other employes that the last seen of the Doherty woman was when she returned to the burning hotel, saying that she was going to save Annie McDevitt, her chum. Both bodies found to-day lay at the bottom of the stairway leading from the first to the second floors in the rear wing, which was given over to the employes for sleeping quarters. It was thought Miss Doherty had succeeded in reaching the McDevitt girl, and that they were together when htye were overcome by the smoke and fell victims to the flames.

The owners of the building are convinced there is still another body in the ruins, that of a man who has not been seen since the fire Tuesday. So far neither city nor state authorities have made any move toward recovering bodies from the ruins. The police were so slow about this that the proprietors of the hotel hired a gang of men to clear away the debris.

LIGHTING CONTRACT GOOD TILL AUGUST 1

Commissioner of Public Works Rourke has been granted authority to extend the existing contract with the Rising Sun Street Lighting Company for lighting the smaller streets and alleys of the city, for a six months' period ending August 1. The provisional contract under which the company is furnishing light expires on February 1. The city council has appropriated $300,000 for the purpose of having the city buy its own lamps and equipment and bids for supplying 12,000 lamps to the city are now being advertised.

CHERIDAH SIMPSON SUES WEALTHY MAN

SEATTLE, Wash., Jan. 20.—Suit alleging breach of promise and demanding $35,000 damages has been filed here by counsel for Cheridah Simpson, an actress, against Frank M. Stetson, a former actor, but now a rich machinery dealer. Miss Simpson alleges that Stetson proposed to her in 1909, but in July last married Miss Bessie Franklin. Stetson denies the proposal allegation saying that he knew Miss Simpson only casually while he was playing in the same company with her in New York several years ago.

GEN. WILLIAM A. PEW IS CONVALESCING

Brigadier-General William A. Pew, M. V. M., who underwent an operation for an abscess on his knee Friday, is convalescing at his home in Salem. Dr. Thomas Kittredge, a former surgeon in the United States Army, who performed the operation, says it will be some time before General Pew will be able to take up his military duties. The patient will have to wear a plaster of paris cast on his leg, which will interfere with his walking. General Pew will have to report at the hospital in Salem for the next three weeks. He injured his knee by falling on the veranda at his home.

MRS. JEFFERY WANTS HER NAME CHANGED

Mrs. Blanche A. Pearl Jeffery of Brookline wants permission from Judge Flint of the Dedham Probate Court to curtail her name by eliminating "Jeffery." A petition to that effect has been filed. Mrs. Jeffery stated that she was the wife of Richard E. Jeffery, a lawyer in Boston, who resides in Malden, but he obtained a divorce from her on the ground of desertion about two years ago. She stated that she deserted her husband in July, 1906. She asks the court for permission to resume her maiden name. The case will come up the latter part of next month.

Six Children Found Starving

HUNGRY LITTLE ONES RELIEVED

The account in the AMERICAN of the pitiful condition of the six little children of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Conley of No. 71 Baxter street, South Boston, who were found huddled together in a corner of the almost bare tenement without food or fuel by Probation Officer Clayton H. Parmelee, has aroused the charitably inclined persons of the district, and shortly after the AMERICAN went on sale at the news stands and on the streets help was furnished the family by the St. Vincent de Paul Conference, attached to St. Vincent's Catholic Church, on the corner of E and Third streets.

The children range from four months to nine years old. When the probation officer arrived at the tenement he found the children in a pitiable condition, the four months old baby being fondled and cared for by the oldest girl, nine years.

Father Out of Work.

The father was in court before Judge Logan, and it was learned that he had been out of work some time and that the mother had a few days before obtained work scrubbing floors, her earnings going toward paying the rent and occasionally getting a little food for the family.

Temporary relief was furnished by the probation officer and by Captain Hugh Lee of the Broadway station, who bought food and fuel and made the children as comfortable as possible. Later the St. Vincent de Paul Conference furnished more food and fuel, clothing and money, and Senator James H. Powers came forward and procured work for the father.

Residents of the district on reading the story in the AMERICAN were heard to remark that they fear there are a number of such cases in this district that the charitable societies never hear about. In many cases the poor people are not acquainted with the manner of approaching the charitable societies, and in many cases they are prevented from applying for aid because of personal pride and because they are always hopeful of better times soon to come.

Children Freezing in a Trunk.

Early in the week Sergeant Murphy of Station 6 went to No. 94 Tudor street and found two little children, William and John Duplex, in a trunk, trying to keep warm. There was no fire or food in the tenement. The children were brought to Station 6, and Captain Hugh Lee sent out and bought the children food and clothing. It was found that the father and mother of these children were serving sentences at Deer Island for drunkenness. The children were placed in the Home for Destitute Catholic Children on Harrison avenue by the agent for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. Joseph and Delia Duplex, the father and mother of these children, have been pardoned from Deer Island, and were taken to the South Boston District Court before Justice Logan. Agent William R. Critcherson of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, was also in court, and after a conference with Judge Logan, the father of the children promised to do better, get work and provide proper surroundings for his family. The two children were sent back to the Home for Destitute Catholic Children, to remain there until the father gets work and is able to provide for them.

ROXBURY LITTLE BOY IS BADLY BURNED

George, the four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Lubbult of No. 9 Ward street, Roxbury, was badly burned about the body while playing with matches. He was taken to the City Hospital, where it is thought he will recover.

RICHESON WILL BE TOLD FATE

A conference between Attorney William A. Morse, counsel for Clarence V. T. Richeson, and Sheriff John Quinn, Jr., at the latter's office, followed by the announcement that two prominent Baptist clergymen would visit the murderer of Avis Linnell in his cell in the Charles Street Jail, led to the belief that the news of the decision in the case of Silas Phelps was to be broken to Richeson at once.

It was learned that Richeson had not yet learned that Phelps is to die, his petition for clemency having been turned down by the Executive Council. This was taken by friends of Richeson to indicate there is no hope for a commutation of sentence to life imprisonment in his case.

The names of the Baptist ministers who are to see Richeson were withheld. It was understood that one reason for their visit might be to comfort Richeson in case he were greatly affected by the disappointing news of what had been done in the Phelps case.

It was said Attorney Morse and Sheriff Quinn would visit Richeson's cell with the two clergymen.

Richeson is in good health and has gained weight.

Conference With Lawyer.

"The statement attributed to me to the effect that Richeson is in a serious physical state, is unauthorized and untrue," declared Attorney Morse, after his conference in the sheriff's office. "I never made such a statement. On the contrary, my client is as comfortable as could be expected under the circumstances. I shall have a talk with him."

No message of any kind has been received by the condemned preacher from his relatives in Virginia, it became known to-day. His father, Thomas Varland Richeson, has been quoted, however, as saying he would stick by his son to the end. It is believed the family may give the murderer some support later on when the real fight for his life begins.

The petition of Richeson for executive clemency will not be filed at the State House until public feeling in the case has changed or died away, it came out this afternoon. Friends of Richeson believe they have plenty of time, as he is not to die until the week beginning May 19, under the sentence of the court.

No Newspapers Given Him.

Sheriff Quinn sees Richeson every day, and says that the more he sees of him the more he pities him. "I do not want to talk about his crime or what he did, but to look at him you would pity him," he said.

Richeson is furnished with anything he asks for except the newspapers. Magazines are given him to read after they have been reviewed by the sheriff. Books are being sent to Richeson, which are looked over by the sheriff, and if found all right are given to Richeson.

Sheriff Quinn says that Richeson's sister left an order to furnish her brother with anything he wished for, charging the cost to her. The expense is being charged up to the State, however, by the sheriff. Richeson is given whatever he wants to eat. A heavy guard is put on him when he is eating.

BURGLARS LOOT A SHOE STORE

Burglars entered a store at No. 1,256 Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge, which is occupied by William H. Simmonds as a haberdashery and John O'Brien as a shoe store, and stole goods valued at over $200. The goods stolen were packed in travelling bags which were also carried away. An entrance was gained by forcing the front door.

CONTINUE GUARD OVER GOV. FOSS

Governor Foss was accompanied from his home in Jamaica Plain to the State House to-day by two members of the State Police, who guarded him against the threatened attack by dynamiters, made in connection with the Lawrence strike. The Governor left his home about 9 o'clock and it took about an hour to walk to the State House.

The men assigned to accompany the Governor were Joseph V. Daly and Michael J. Barrett. They walked on either side of him. Nothing of a suspicious nature was noticed during the trip.

The Governor's home was guarded last night and to-day by policemen from Station 13, assigned to the work by Captain Harriman. The captain called up Secretary Holman to-day and received instructions as to guarding the Governor's house to-night and over Sunday.

Special precautions are to be taken to look after the safety of the Governor over Sunday.

State Policeman Daly and Hardiman were stationed to-day in the executive chamber at the State House leading to the Governor's private office. In addition to these two men State Policeman Barrett remained in the basement of the State House on emergency duty in connection with taking care of the Governor.

GOV. FOSS' SECOND SON IS ENGAGED

Boston and Brookline society are much interested in the engagement announced to-day of Miss Katherine Cobb of Jamaica Plain, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick L. Cobb, and Noble Foss, second son of Governor and Mrs. Eugene N. Foss.

The announcement is no surprise to the younger set where Miss Cobb and Mr. Foss were prominent members. For the past two years Noble Foss has been connected with the Sturtevant Blower Works, Hyde Park.

PANAMA CANAL IS FOUR-FIFTHS DONE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—New Year's Day, 1912, marked the completion of four-fifths of the excavation for the Panama Canal. According to the canal record the American engineers since beginning their work in May, 1904, have taken 158,010,-063 cubic yards of dirt and stone out of canal bed. On January 1 there remained to be excavated 37,230,439 cubic yards, or about one-fifth of the entire amount required for the completion of the canal. At the beginning of the year, 75 per cent. of the concrete for the canal locks was in place.

WOMAN A SUICIDE BY INHALING GAS

Grace Rogers, fifty-six, and single, living at No. 32 Milford street, South End, where she conducted a lodging house, was found dead in bed with one end of a rubber tube in her mouth, the other end fastened to a gasjet and the gas turned on. Medical Examiner Leary viewed the body and pronounced it a case of suicide. Miss Rogers had been in poor health for some time and this is given as the cause of her act. She was found by a lodger, who detected the odor of gas.

FISHING FLEET AGAIN CAUGHT IN THE ICE

GLOUCESTER, Jan. 20.—Benjamin A. Smith of the Gorton-Pew Company has received word that the seven Gloucester fishing schooners have encountered another ice pack and are stalled five miles off Bonne Bay lighthouse. Mr. Smith sent a wireless message to the revenue cutters Grasham and Androscoggin, giving them the location of the schooners and urging the cutters to proceed to their relief at full speed.

NEW THREATS AT LAWRENCE

for alleged assault on Martin Macone and $50 on a charge of intimidating Aldose Vendet. Saw was arrested at the Everett Mills by Policemen Kilpatrick and O'Sullivan.

On a charge of drunkenness, Tony Roxen was fined $1; on a charge of assault, he was fined $10. Roxen was arrested at the Arlington Mills by two soldiers of Company F of the Eighth Regiment of Haverhill The police said Roxen had josteld girls at the mills because they refused to join the strikers.

Michael Dubara, who was arested in the Paul Chabers hall, headquarters of the strikers, was brought into the dock. As he was being arraigned the police noticed three of his friends, Michael Balroski, Alex Mason and Antoni Kuncha, in the courtroom. The trio were placed under arrest and all four men wer held for a hearing February 1. The men were charged with intimidating Paul Kasantsa.

Peter Kurszonrok of No. 73 Chestnut street, this city, jumped from a third-story window of his home to-day and was so badly injured that at the Lawrence General Hospital it was said he would probably die. The police said the man had been crazed by being thrown out of work as a result of teh strike. He has a wife and is thirty years old.

The police also asserted another striker, an English-speaking weaver, living on Broadway, had gone crazy because of the strike. The man is being closely watched by his family.

Open threats to "get" the Pinkerton detectives said to be after him were made by Strike Leader Ettor to-day.

"They say the Pinkertons are out to 'get' me," he declared during a meeting of the strikers' executive committee. "You all know what 'get' means. And you know just what I mean when I say that if there's any getting to be done in this fight, I'll 'get' the Pinkertons."

Polish bakers the city over to-day announced that they had cut the price of bread to help the starving strikers. The price of a 10-cent loaf has been reduced to 7 cents and a 7-cent loaf to 5 cents for families affected by the strike. No reduction will be made for those not on strike.

Exhibits Cartridge.

Intense excitement ensued at the committee meeting to-day when a striker produced a big ball cartridge, which he said a trooper had given the daughter of a striker with the warning to keep away from the mills or suffer the consequences.

Ettor was furious when he heard of the alleged occurence, , and he insisted that a committee be appointed to wait on Colonel Sweester to denounce the use of ball-cartridges by the militia. This was done, and the committee immediately left to place the matter before Colonel Sweester.

Threten Run on Bank.

Still another furore was caused at this committee meeting by the statement made by a Polish delegate that the banks had refused to pay out money to their Polish depositors. Threats were made to start a run on the banks and ruin their business if the practice were not stopped.

The statement previously issued by President Wood of the American Woolen Company, in which he asserted that the payment of higher wages at this time was an impossibility, was roundly scored by Ettor and others. Still another special committee was appointed to reply to this statement.

Following the issuance of instructions to those under sentence for infractions of the law since the present trouble started to appeal their cases, Ettor made this significant statement:

"This judge (Mahoney) seems to be behaving himself quite rough. I have told our people to appeal their cases. We'll see about this thing, later."

Ettor later attacked John Golden of Fall River, international president of the United Textile Workers of America, accusing him of furnishing trikebreakers for the bosses in various troubles.

Replies to Golden.

"I'm not going to fight Golden now," he said, placing special emphasis on the word "now." "He is like a good many other fake labor leaders, one of those kind of fellows who furnish strike-breakers to the bosses in time of trouble. Let him get a reputation before he troubles me. I can't trouble with him now, but I'll attend to his case later."

Word was received to-day from the Pennsylvania headquarters of the Brotherhood of Russia, a Russian revolutionary organization, it was said, that they will supply money to feed the Russians on strike in this city for two years, if necessary.

It was further announced that subscription sheets would be ready by Monday morning at the latest, to be distributed among the regular trade unionists of the State and nation, calling for financial assistance. Ettor says this will result in money pouring in to Lawrence for the strikers.

Colonel Sweetser, acting for Governor Foss, induced Strike Leader Ettor to meet him to-day at the armory, to see if the trouble could not be fixed up so that the strikers could resume their places in the mills, pending the arbitration of the differences between them and the mill owners.

Merchants Seek Peace.

Colonel Sweetser is an associate justice of the District Court in Malden, and he has been working to bring about a settlement of the strike ever since he came here. Realizing that Ettor practically controls the strikers, he tried to persuade him to allow the strikers to return to work with the promise that things would be made better for them as soon as possible.

A meeting of the Italian business men and bankers of Lawrence was held to-day with the same end in view. Their desire is that the strikers return to work and then settle their differences by arbitration.

Ettor, however, manifested no disposition to-day to retrace his steps from the position that he has already announced. He made this statement, it being in reply to the offer of President Wood to take the strikers back:

"The employes of President Wood will not go back to work. Neither will any other strikers, until the mill owners concede all our demands. We are not in this thing for fun. It is not child's play.

Arlington Mills Closed.

"We will not allow anyone to go back to work in the mills, and we are going to close every mill in Lawrence. I told the Mayor and Council we would do this, unless they conceded our demands, and the thing is almost accomplished. It is the only way to bring the monsters to terms."

The Arlington Mills did not open to-day. When the whistle failed to blow at the usual time, the pickets outside sent up shouts and jeers in their joy. People who had gathered to go to work turned and returned to their homes.

Four men in court to-day will answer to charges of violence. In addition Mike Kubara is charged with entering the home of an employe, Paul Kassenance, and threatening him with a revolver.

"You will die to-morrow night, if you go to work in tae morning," Kubara is said to have shouted.

The saloons were ordered closed to-day, following a consultation between Mayor Scanlon and Colonel Sweetser. It was decided at a late hour that the opening for half a day, which had been planned, was inadvisable, and as a result a policeman was stationed at each saloon to-day to order the proprietors to keep the places closed till further notice.

The last pay envelopes that the strikers expect to receive in many days were to-day distributed at the Washington, Wood and Ayer Mills, under militia guard. How long the 25,000 workers now out will be able to withstand the pinch of poverty is one of the chief problems confronting the executive committee of the strikers. As an attempt at its solution, urgent appeals for financial aid have gone out to the men and women workers of the State. The imperative need for money to buy food for the strikers and their families is fully set forth.

The initiative toward the raising of money in other cities will be taken in Boston, Friday evening, January 26, when a meeting for that purpose will be held in Faneuil Hall.

Thus far little or nothing has been collected as a strike fund. Some question was raised about compensating the lawyer who appeared in court in defence of one of the strikers.

"There will be no expenses for lawyers in this affair," Organizer Ettor declared. "We will soon have too many children on our hands to feed for that."

Strikers Appeal For Aid.

The executive committee has addressed an appeal to the working men and women of Massachusetts and elsewhere for funds with which to carry on the struggle. This appeal says, in part:

> Financial aid is needed, and needed quickly. He who gives quickly gives doubly. We propose to establish a commissary for the needy and we ask for clothes, provisions and money. Get among your shopmates, make collections in the mills and factories, hold meetings to raise funds and protest against the way that political and military agents of the masters have treated us. Send for subscription lists to use among your fellow-workers. Send committees to business houses in your cities to secure and send provisions of all sorts.

Corbett's Chat

Derry, N. H., Offers inducements to Manufacturers—Various Business Notes.

Last fall Governor Bass publicly announced that he wished the people to advertise the advantages of the Granite State. Derry, one of New Hampshire's thriving towns, offers special inducements for substantial concerns to locate within her borders. What was known as the Emerson & Moody shoe factory is available on favorable terms

DERRY IS DOING THINGS.

C. N. Garvin, postmaster, has acceptably filled his position nine years, and has just been reappointed by President Taft. In 1902 postoffice receipts were $1,700; last year, $12,000.

The banking facilities there are all that could be desired. The Derry National Bank was founded in 1828, when it was known as the Derry Bank, becoming a national bank in 1864. This financial institution is managed by capable men. F. J. Shepard is president; J. B. Bartlett, cashier. Its resources are over $300,000. Safe deposit boxes are rented, and investment securities are for sale. Banking by mail receives every attention, and certificates are issued for temporary deposits.

The First National Bank offers every accommodation in keeping with sound business methods. Established six years ago, this bank has grown in public favor. The first year its deposits were $36,000; last year, $65,000. R. W. Pillsbury is president, E. N. Whitney vice-president, J. H. Weston cashier—able financiers. Mr. Weston, by the way, was formerly with the Merchants' National Bank of Manchester. The Nutfield Savings Bank, incorporated the same time the First National was founded, has deposits of $70,000.

F. N. Young took up his residence in Derry in 1895. Fifteen years ago he started a real estate, insurance and business agency, and to-day he is doing things—without question the largest agency along the lines indicated in Southern New Hampshire. Mr Young makes a specialty of farms, and has a large number in different sections of New England for sale at all prices. He is a reliable hustler. Mr. Young is a trustee of the Nutfield Savings Bank and a director of the First National Bank.

W. H. Benson, news dealer and stationer, has been attending to business the last ten years and making friends both at his inviting store opposite the depot, and as town clerk. Previous to engaging in business Mr. Benson was foreman of a shoe factory. He is good-natured, enterprising, reliable, public-spirited, and is meeting with deserved success.

H. L. Benson is proprietor of a well-appointed, modern drug store, carries a complete stock of drugs and druggists' sundries, and has two registered pharmacists in his employ. Since recent improvements were made. Hough's Dry Goods Store is all the more attractive and doing a good business. Fine stock, reasonable prices, and Mrs. Hough is very popular. W. F. Neal went to Derry in 1869. Clerk in hardware store 22 years. In 1900 purchased the business. Now carries complete stock, including paints, oils, farming implements, etc. Hotel Bradford is equipped with modern conveniences. Proprietor J. W. Moncrieff takes good care of guests.

WORTH CONSIDERING.

A suggestion: Buy an overcoat now, wear it balance of winter, put it away in camphor till next winter, when you may start in with practically a new coat. Again, at this season you get bargains in chilly weather clothing, particularly if you patronize Wolf's, "My Clothier," corner of Hanover and Portland streets, one of Boston's live stores.

FITCHBURG NOTES.

The Fitchburg Automobile Company has every facility for the care of autos at their well-favored garage, having ample accommodations for some 35 cars. P. F. Connors, the manager, was among the first to direct his attention to the repair and care of automobiles, and is a good man to do business with. Gasoline, oils and supplies.

N. C. Rublee, the optician, known far and near, has been in his present establishment sixteen years, deals in optical goods and makes a feature of prescription work, and guarantees satisfaction. The Goodrich Clothing Company, 56 years in business here, has an enviable record, now belongs to the Besse Syndicate, carries a very select stock, including fine furs. Manager Alley is well qualified for his position. C. P. Dickinson manufactures leather tips for ladies' shoes—an important industry—and is meeting with his full share of prosperity, which he justly deserves, as he is a man of ability and pleasing address.

PLEASANT MENTION.

First-class postal facilities at Clinton, Mass. The people are to be congratulated in having Charles L. Stevens, experienced, efficient and courteous, as postmaster. This is his fourth term.

F. O. Anderson, the high-grade baker and caterer, at Hudson, Mass., supplies societies and families with the best ever at short notice. Good bread, cake and pastry a specialty.

For exclusive art goods, including novelties made from abalone shell and kelp seaweed, found on California's coast, also needle work, visit the captivating Band Box, 601 Butler Exchange, Providence.

RABBI EICHLER PLEADS THE CAUSE OF MILL STRIKERS

"Even as God heard the groanings of the Israelites in their Egyptian bondage, so He hears the groanings of the poor workmen oppressed and crushed in the economic bondage of the twentieth century."

Thus declared Rabbi M. M. Eichler in his sermon at Temple Ohabei Shalom, Union Park street. He preached on the theme "Slavery, Ancient and Modern," and said in part:

"If there is anything we can learn from the Bible it is this: That God hates injustice and that of all forms of injustice the most cruel is slavery. Slavery in its ancient form is a thing of the past, but the more subtle slavery which the rich and well-organized employers inflict upon the economically helpless laborers is flourishing more than ever.

"'The laborer is worthy of his hire,' is one of the scriptural principles which we have not yet fully recognized. The laborers in the mills of Massachusetts do not get a living wage; this is a fact which every one knows and it is a crying shame.

"That these workmen strike for decent wages is a credit to their manhood and intelligence. That they belong to the races and nationalities which many consider as undesirable immigrants proves how unfounded is the fear that the Italians, Hungarians and Syrian laborers will lower the standard of living in America. These foreign laborers are anxious for a higher standard of living, but the short-sighted and selfish policy of their employers makes it impossible.

"It is the duty of every patriotic citizen to do his share in helping these men to get a decent living wage, or else the standard of living will be lowered to all.

"The chain is not stronger than its weakest link. Let every pulpit resound with the message of brotherhood and righteousness. It is a moral problem more than an economic one. We are our brother's keepers."

PROTEST HIGH COST OF BUTTER

Boston housewives are protesting in a body against the exorbitant prices to which butter has been elevated. The boycotts which have been successfully inaugurated in New York and Philadelphia may be imitated here, and the statement of Mrs. W. L. Putnam, chairman of the Ice Cream and Butter Committee of the Women's Municipal League, in which she calls upon housewives to put butter in the discard during the period of high prices, awakens an enthusiastic response.

At her home, at No. 49 Beacon street, Mrs. Putnam said:

"This latest increase in the price of butter is almost unbearable. They say a man's heart is in his stomach. That's true for men and women and everybody else. It's there, and it's in his or her pocketbook, too. And that's why this butter cost interests everybody.

Many Good Substitutes.

"But the best part of it is that we can very easily strike back at the butter people. There are so many substitutes that no one need deprive themselves of any real necessity, or even of a luxury.

"I have never used anything besides butter, regularly, but I have no doubt that many, many times what I supposed was butter was something else. And no harm was done.

"That's what opens the way to strike back at the Elgin people. You know it is the Elgin company at Elgin, Ill., that regulates butter prices all over the United States. It is they who are back of this increase in the price, and it is they who must be fought.

"It would seem at first thought that there is small use in starting a boycott against butter here and hoping that it will strike people as far away as Illinois. But the housewives of Philadelphia and of New York have already started something of the kind. They are going to try to boycott butter absolutely for thirty days.

Urge Organization.

"I don't suppose it is possible to form an organization sufficiently strong, in such a short time, to bring the price down very far. We consumers will never get our rights until we get a national organization. Every one else is organized—producers of food and clothes and fuel and every commodity now in use. It is only the consumer who is helplessly divided.

"But we can do much by simply refusing to buy butter when the price is so high as to be—for many people—absolutely prohibitive. Such a price is outrageously out of keeping with the economic laws that govern the situation. It is as ridiculous as that Boston's milk should come in one day before noon and not be delivered to the consumer till the following morning. Probably you didn't realize it, but most of the milk you drink is about three days old. If you've ever lived on a farm you have noticed the difference in the taste. An organization of consumers could soon remedy that.

"And in the same way, if we only had an organization of consumers we could put a stop to this butter foolishness in no time. We can't put a stop to it without organization, but we can make a protest that will be heard clear out to Elgin.

"Let's do it, I say."

PRICE OF COAL JUMPS AGAIN

Now that butter has taken a leap skyward and potatoes are almost beyond the reach of working people the Coal Barons have given notice that they are in need of more money.

The coal men advanced furnace and egg coal on Monday, and to-day it was announced that nut coal, soft coal and screenings would be 25 cents a ton higher.

Nut coal is now $7.75 a ton; soft coal, $4.75, and screenings, $3.

Increased freight rates and higher prices for handling the coal are assigned as the reasons for the jump in quotations.

Other reasons for the advance given by the coal dealers are limited outputs at the mines, delays due to railroad tieups, frozen harbors in the southern loading ports, storms at sea, cold weather and slippery streets.

Consumers Pay for All.

For all of which the consumer must pay! There is no prospect of better conditions before Spring.

The Boston News Bureau, in discussing the situation, has this to say:

"With the large supply now held by the New England Coal & Coke Company, and the prospects of further receipts of about 28,000 tons to-day, Sunday and Monday, there is no prospect of a serious shortage of soft coal in New England, at the present time at least. Deliveries by the New England Company in the next three days will probably aggregate 30,000 tons, of which 10,000 will go to Boston consumers and 20,000 tons to consumers outside of Boston.

Sharp Advance in Soft Coal.

"The effect of the scarcity of coal in the hands of the smaller dealers has been a sharp advance in soft coal prices. At Mystic wharf the asking price is now $5 a ton, against a nominal price of about $3.60 per ton.

"The great bulk of the soft coal consumed in New England is bought on yearly contracts, and to keep contracts filled has become a very serious problem, and instead of reaping a harvest by selling coal at -5 per ton, the dealers are compelled to ship every pound that arrives at discharging points on these contracts.

Behind on Orders.

"On the hard coal end, the wholesale dealers report they are now sixty days behind on their orders. Severe weather does not affect prices of this coal, however. Wholesale prices are on a fixed basis. Starting at $5 per ton on April 1, they advance ten cents to $5.50 on September 1, where they stay throughout the Winter. In the same way the retail dealers have advanced their prices, all domestic sizes to-day being $7.75 a ton in Boston."

GOV. BASS WEDS MISS EDITH BIRD

One of the most charming romances of society and State that has favored New England for years culminated to-day in the marriage of Miss Edith H. Bird, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Charles S. Bird of East Walpole, to Governor Robert P. Bass of New Hampshire.

The bride is a granddaughter of the late Francis W. Bird and a sister of Mrs. Louis Agassiz Shaw (Joan Bird).

Governor Bass is one of the leading men of the nation. Though born in Chicago he has become identified with New Hampshire till he is taken by many as a native son of the State which has given him the highest office in its honor.

The story of the love of Robert P. Bass for Miss Bird is all the more delightful to their friends, because the young Governor of New Hampshire was regarded by his intimates as a confirmed bachelor, almost up to the announcement of the engagement.

Bishop Parker Officiated.

The wedding took place at Endean, the beautiful Bird mansion in East Walpole, at 4:15, the ceremony being performed in the music room. The officiating clergymen were the Rt. Rev. E. E. Parker, the Episcopal bishop coadjutor of New Hampshire, assisted by the Rev. James A. Thompson, rector of the Church of the Epiphany in Walpole.

The house was most artistically decorated with white roses, palms and evergreens, while an altar of flowers and greenery was erected at one end of the room where the ceremony was performed. The wedding was a small affair, including only the members and most intimate friends of the two families as guests. The were seated on either side of the broad aisle, which was left through the centre of the music room for the bridal procession.

The aim of both families was to make the affair as simple and quiet as possible, therefore there were few guests and no bridesmaids or ushers. The bride's younger sister, Mrs. Louis A. Shaw, who was Joan Bird, was matron of honor, and John F. Bass of Chicago, the former war correspondent, brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

The tall, slender bride was a picture in her gown of white satin, made with a short train and embroidered with pearls. The yoke and sleeves were Limerick Irish lace, and the veil was of the same material.

Both Are Linguists.

Mrs. Charles S. Bird, mother of the bride, was asked at the time of the announcement to tell a little about the way the romance came about. Mrs. Bird smiled gently and said:

"He speaks French quickly—she is an accomplished linguist. He admired her riding—she admired his career. They deliberated long and they decided quickly. After an eight years' friendship, a five weeks' engagement seemed long enough. It's the old, old story."

Eight years ago, when Miss Edith H. Bird was a girl of fifteen years, she was at Hot Springs with her parents. Among the guests there was Robert Perkins Bass of Peterboro, N. H., Harvard graduate, lawyer, rich and brilliant. Young Mr. Bass was introduced to the girl from East Walpole.

The girl and the young man found interests in common. Facile command of French was one. For fun they talked in French to each other.

Miss Bird was, even then, a daring rider. The young lawyer admired her complete control of mounts fiery enough to have daunted many an older horsewoman. The girl found the Harvard graduate extremely interesting.

URGE RELIGIOUS WORK FOR BOYS

The boys' conferences of the Men and Religion Forward Movement were resumed in the vestry of the Park Street Church. C. H. Potter presided. R. H. Waite of New York city, international secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association, addressed the boys. He said in part: "I urge all of you boys to read at least one book of a standard author each week. It is one of the best things you could do for the cultivation of taste. It would be a good idea for you to form classes of foreigners in your district and teach them the English language. I think that this is the best social service work for boys. The opportunities for this work in and around Boston are second to none."

Clarence C. Robinson of New York said: "When you fellows have a job to do, do it. If you follow along this line you will always be successful. Bible study has greatly changed the conditions in the colleges of this country. At Yale, there is a band of undergraduates, who believe in God's word and show it by their actions. Other students endeavor to follow the example set by them. Now is the time for you boys, most of whom are in the preparatory schools, to prepare for your college career. The high school is the battle ground. So while you have the opportunity, try to live good Christian lives."

ESCAPES BY CELL ROOF AT SING SING

OSSINING, N. Y., Jan. 20.—Cutting a hole through the roof of his cell and dropping over the penitentiary walls unseen by guards, Francisco Doliani, serving an indeterminate sentence for assault in the second degree, escaped from Sing Sing prison some time early to-day. He had made a rope of his blanket and dropped to the roadway outside the walls which run parallel with the New York Central railroad track. The prison officials could not account for the presence of the tools by which the prisoner had effected his escape.

POET WATSON COMING WITH DICKENS ODE

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—William Watson, the English poet, it is announced, has accepted an invitation to write a commemorative poem to be read in Carnegie Hall on the night of February 7, on the occasion of the 100th anniversary of the birth of Charles Dickens. Mr. Watson, who will long be remembered for another celebrated poem, "The Woman With the Serpent's Tongue," may even come to New York to read his poem on the night of the celebration. He has written to say that he hopes to bring the poem over in person.

SAY PROCTORS MAY REUNITE

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Proctor, whose separation was told exclusively in yesterday's AMERICAN, declared to-day that they believed the rift in the lute of their happiness would be mended and that the recently married musicians would be reunited.

The marriage of the couple less than a year ago attracted much attention, as the husband had been a protege of Mrs. Jack Gardner. Similarity of temperament of a highly strung nervous character was regarded as the cause of the break in the domestic peace of the little family.

As Miss Margaret L. Burtt, a music student, Mrs. Proctor before her marriage lived with Mrs. Catherine R. Fleming, of No. 44 St. Stephens street. Mrs. Proctor and Mrs. Fleming have been close friends since the marriage. Seen to-day at her home, Mrs. Fleming said:

"Mrs. Proctor called on me for a few minutes yesterday. The call had no especial significance. It was purely social in its nature. It was the first time I had seen Mrs. Proctor in some time.

"Mrs. Proctor did not seem to be in her usually good health. She seemed to be suffering from a nervous breakdown. She said she was going to visit her grandmother in Cambridge, N. Y., for a short period.

"Mrs. Proctor did not mention to me that she contemplated instituting court proceedings against her husband for divorce. I was very much surprised when I learned that there had been any trouble between her and Mr. Proctor. I had always believed that the match was an unusually fortunate one and that the Proctors were very happy.

"Temporary Misunderstanding."

"It is my opinion that this is nothing but a temporary misunderstanding and that when they have an opportunity to think matters over everything will come out all right.

"I do not attach very much importance to the reported breach. I think that Mrs. Proctor and her husband will speedily forget their little misunderstanding and will get together again. I do not think that Mrs. Proctor has engaged counsel. I do not think that the breach between her and her husband is of sufficient importance to warrant her engaging counsel."

Calls Statements False.

"I have absolutely nothing to say about the case either one way or the other," said Mrs. Charlotte E. Proctor, mother of George W. Proctor. "I shall be obliged to refer you to Mr. Proctor himself. In fact, I know very little about the case anyway as I was away all Summer with my daughter, who is an invalid."

"Was Mr. Proctor with you while you were away?" was asked. "No, Mr. Proctor was not with us. He was here at home with his wife," was the reply.

Continuing Mrs. Proctor said, "I would like to say this, however, I think it is a shame the way some of the papers are doing. Many of the statements which have been printed are absolutely false. It is bad enough to have all of this notoriety anyway, but coupled with these untruths it makes it doubly hard to bear."

Mr. Proctor, at his home on Fairmount street, Brookline, said: "It is true that Mrs. Proctor has gone away, and I do not know where she has gone." Beyond this he would make no statement, for the reason, he said, that he did not care to discuss his private affairs with the public.

It is known, however, that Mrs. Proctor three weeks ago left the pretty white cottage at Chestnut Hill, overlooking the reservoir, which Mrs. "Jack" Gardner built and fitted out for Proctor and his mother a few years ago. She stayed with friends in Brookline and later in Boston, and yesterday left on the noon train for Albany. From there she will go to her grandparents' home in Cambridge, N. Y., not far from the Capitol.

The reported estrangement of the couple, whose romantic courtship led to the wedding only ten months ago, has been the cause of much gossip in exclusive Back Bay circles.

The fact that Mrs. Proctor was a protege of Mrs. "Jack" Gardner attracted much attention to the Proctors, and they were received everywhere. They were often seen together at public functions and recitals with Mrs. Gardner, and also at the opera.

Predicted By Friends.

Now intimate friends say that they predicted the outcome months ago, and that a break was inevitable. A too close similarity of musical temperaments and pursuits they give as the causes. Miss Burtt was talented and pretty. She had been in Boston for about six years studying music, formerly as a pupil of Edwin Klare and Charles Anthony. The pair were mutually attracted at the first meeting, and Miss Burtt gave up her work at the Conservatory and devoted herself entirely to Mr. Proctor's tutelage. He was eager about her musical advancement.

Mrs. Gardner took as much interest as the bride in the nuptial plans. She personally supervised details and the fashioning of the bride's trousseau. She is reported to have even selected the bridesmaid and the best man. It was said that the wedding would never have taken place if the bride had not won the favor of Mrs. Gardner. Mr. Proctor had often boasted that he would never marry any one without Mrs. Gardner's consent.

HOW PROFESSOR MUENSTERBERG'S DEVICE MAY WORK

SENECA LOSES IN LONG RACE

The British steamship Seneca arrived from the Far East with a treasure cargo of Oriental goods in her holds and a deep sorrow in her bosom. She was the loser of an 11,000-mile race with a sister ship, the Erroll, which arrived thirty-seven hours ahead of her.

The Erroll and the Seneca left Sebang nearly two months ago, bound for Boston. There were bets up among the officers, and the race was neck and neck to Port Said and Suez. In the Mediterranean the ships encountered heavy gales and high head seas, but the Erroll made better weather of it and arrived in Algiers four hours to the good.

The Erroll arrived just in time to coal and get away, while the Seneca was delayed twelve hours because of other ships that had arrived at the coal port. So the Erroll got a sixteen-hour start and had fine weather crossing the Atlantic, except a couple of snowstorms as she approached the coast.

The Seneca, however, struck one gale after another and lost twenty-one hours more.

BRINGS RECORD POTATO CARGO

The Leyland line steamship Columbian arrived from Liverpool with 50,820 bushels of potatoes, by far the largest shipment of the kind that ever reached these shores from Europe.

Produce traders saw the market in New England rising to a point where they could buy potatoes in Europe and make a good profit on them after paying 10 cents a bushel duty.

The traders will make a good thing, for potatoes have advanced 25 cents a bushel or more since the Columbian sailed for Boston.

There was also a large shipment of Spanish onions, amounting to 6,000 bushels.

The Columbian was delayed several days by hurricane weather and entered port with a sharp list to port, the result of a shifted cargo. A big sea swept a boat away, smashed in the starboard side of the bridge and damaged the cattle pens on the after deck.

SCHOOL VOTERS' LEAGUE ELECTS

Mrs. Frank L. Young of Ashmont heads the new board of officers of the School Voters' League, as president, with Mrs. Mary Morton Kehew first vice-president, and Mrs. Stanley McCormick treasurer, for the coming year.

In addition to the election of officers at a meeting in Perkins Hall, the league voted to continue its "critical study of school affairs" during the next twelve months. A new executive board was elected as follows: Miss Cora Bigelow, Miss Charlotte E. Dogherty, Mrs. Susan W. FitzGerald, Mrs. Florence M. Glover, Miss Isabel Hyams, Miss Mary S. Locke, Miss Catherine M. McGinley, Miss Alice McIntyre, Miss Esther F. Sullivan, Miss Anne Withington, Dr. Evangeline W. Young.

I'll Rid You of Your Asthma

I Will Send You A Free Trial Of My Treatment To Prove Its Wonderful Effects.

For years and years, thousands of sufferers have been following the beaten path in the treatment of Asthma,—and they are still gasping and clutching for breath.

Quick Relief With My Treatment. Try It And Prove It.

The ordinary so-called "remedies" are but habitual failures. I have tried them all. I am a physician. Day and night for years I almost felt as if the hand of death was clutching at my throat, and that every breathless struggle would be my last.

I exhausted medical books in a vain search for a cure. At last I discovered my own treatment, used it, and if an angel had come and carried me suddenly aloft I could not have been more surprised at its results.

I ask no asthma sufferer to believe me. I am known only by my works. I want to prove to you that this treatment not only actually cures, but cures permanently. I do not ask a cent. All you have to do is to send me your name and address and I will send you a free trial treatment of my asthma remedy, as quick as the mail can bring it to you.

Send your letter to me, Dr. W. K. Walrath, Box 184, Adams, New York. Friends, I want to rescue you from those blood-curdling, "smothered-alive" spasms forever. Will you let me prove I can do it? Not only asthma but hay fever and bronchitis disappear gloriously by the use of the treatment. Write me to-day.

MUNSTERBERG RIDICULES TEST

"My theory? Bah!"

But the "bah" did not begin to reflect the feelings of Professor Hugo Munsterberg. The professor was grieved, mad, insulted. His professional pride was hurt.

"The subject alluded to," continued Professor Munsterberg in his study at Cambridge, "this man of the town of Watts, Cal., which the papers say was before the court for vagrancy, constituted no test at all. He was merely excited.

"A grotesque exaggeration and mistake. The trouble is that my theory is not properly understood. Such an experiment as that mentioned in the morning newspapers is no test of my doctrine at all. It's absurd, ridiculous! They don't comprehend."

"Grotesque," Says Professor.

"But just how does it differ from your theory, professor? What is your theory in substance?" he was asked.

"My theory? It is too much to discuss now. The time I have not. I have no patience with such grotesque interpretations," and right there the interview ended abruptly.

The professor refused to discuss his latest scientific discovery of how to detect crime by heart pulsation. A dispatch from Los Angeles told how Arthur Schmidt, suspected of being an escaped convict and arrested for vagrancy, was subjected to the stethoscope test in an effort to ascertain whether the prisoner told the truth. It was proclaimed "the first demonstration in the history of criminology of Professor Munsterberg's theory that the pulsations of the heart betray either guilt or innocence."

When the test was begun in Justice Cassidy's session the prisoner's heart pulsations registered 78 beats to the minute. Asked his true name the defendant hesitated and during the delay of several seconds his heart thumped to the tune of 88 as he replied, "James Smithers."

Officials Jubilant.

Shown the increased pulse registration and interogated by the judge the man admitted he lied about his name and said he was Arthur Schmidt of Seattle. The names of several escaped prisoners of doubtful fame were mentioned, but the stethoscope reflected nothing but normal heart-taps.

The admitted lie was the only time throughout the examination, it was reported, that the pulsations increased radically. Schmidt, mystified by the odd "third degree," was released and the officials were jubilant over a test which the sponsor within the shades of Harvard to-day declared to be an absurd test of "mere excitement."

THOUGHT LAW WOULD BAN COMMUNION

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Fear that a bill to prohibit the interstate transportation of liquors would interfere with the use of wine in church communions, led Rev. George Schubert of Wilkesbarre, Pa., a Lutheran minister, to protest before the House Judiciary Committee. He was informed that the measure would have no such effect, and he departed much relieved.

ORGANIZED LABOR

Declares War Upon the White Plague

Organized labor is beginning to make systematic warfare upon the great white plague, tuberculosis, which carries off more of our population than any other disease. Better housing conditions, cleanliness, fresh air and sanitary workshops are demanded as the means of preventing the spread of this malady.

It is generally acknowledged by the medical profession that tuberculosis in its advanced stages is not curable by medication. But colds, coughs and inflammations of the membranes of the throat and lungs, which so often develop into consumption, are said to yield readily to the healing action of virgin oil of pine, which is prepared with scientific purity by the Leach Chemical Company, of Cincinnati, Ohio.

The contents of a half-ounce vial, added to two ounces of glycerine and eight ounces of pure whiskey, will make a year's supply of cough medicine which will cure any cold that is curable. The ingredients may be secured at any drug store, and mixed at home.

SAID ENOUGH, SAYS WATTERSON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—"As to the Wilson matter, I have nothing to add to what has already been said, unless it be seriously challenged by some responsible person. Then I may have a good deal to say," said Colonel Henry Watterson, who is in Washington for a week's stay.

In the same hotel was William F. McCombs, who also announced that he thought Watterson had said enough about the Wilson matter.

From another Wilson source came a story that Wilson had refused to "stay friends" with Harvey because Harvey had tried to introduce him to no less a "plunderbunderer" than Thomas Fortune Ryan.

The Wilson people are busy digging up resolutions of confidence in the professor, and also engaged actively in efforts to put the quietus on Colonel Harvey.

Simultaneously with the arrival of Colonel Watterson a statement was issued by Mr. McCombs, campaign manager for Woodrow Wilson, declaring that "the tears that are being shed over the passing incident are wrung from those who have hitherto been the most conspicuous opponents of Governor Wilson."

"The gist of the issue, as I see it, is whether one friend in private conversation with another should in answer to a plain question resort to flattery or dissimulation, or whether he should state the truth as he sees it.

"This whole Wilson-Harvey-Watterson incident is a bubble, not a billow. It is not surprising, however, that the opponents of Wilson and the friends of other candidates should mistake the one for the other. It seems that the head and heart of the Governor's offending is that he told the truth."

WILSON TOO BUSY TO MAKE REPLY TO COL. WATTERSON

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Jan. 20.—Governor Woodrow Wilson spoke in the opera house to an audience composed of representative business and professional men, university faculty members and students. His topic was "Opportunities of Democracy."

He said the time had come for the young man to enter politics understandingly, without prejudice, refusing to stand for private arrangements, secret sessions, frame-ups and political pre-arrangements that have been endured in the past.

Governor Wilson said that in his campaigns of the last two years he had discovered that the typical audience was not a partisan one, but was composed of men who realized a new breath was abroad in the nation and new issues confronted the nation, men who, he believed, were ready to face these issues without respect to the party ticket voted by their ancestors.

The Governor said that he had no opportunity as yet to give to the statement of Colonel Henry Watterson the consideration that it demanded.

WILSON WANTED TO SAVE HARVEY HIS JOB, HEIFFNER SAYS

FARGO, N. D., Jan. 20.—H. G. Heiffner of Seattle, Governor Wilson's campaign manager in the Northwest, says the reason Colonel Harvey was asked not to support him was that the support of Harper's Weekly subjected Colonel Harvey to the danger of dismissal on the part of the magazine's owner.

Mr. Heiffner also declares that Governor Wilson was of the opinion that support by the Weekly indicated support from J. P. Morgan.

CLARK TO ABIDE BY STATE CHOICE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20. — Speaker Champ Clark has pledged himself to rest his claims to the Democratic nomination for the presidency in the hands of the Democrats of Missouri, who will meet in convention at Joplin on February 20.

This means that if the convention should repeat its course of two years ago and indorse former Governor Joseph W. Folk, the Speaker will withdraw from the race and magnanimously throw his support to the man whom the State leaders favor.

It means also that the Speaker of the House intends to continue his practice of expressing himself bluntly and permitting the Democrats of the United States to know exactly where he stands all the time. In view of the fact that Folk has already received the indorsement of a State convention, the Speaker's step in submitting himself to such a crucial test indicates that he is more than ready to stand or fall on his record and his work for the Democratic party.

Supported by the knowledge that he received the indorsement of the State, even though it came only as balm for his wounded feelings, Folk also has promised to observe the will of the coming gathering of Democrats. The difference between the two is that Folk hopes and expects that the approaching convention will feel itself bound to stand by the action of the State Democrats two years ago and renew their indorsement, while Clark is actuated simply by his belief that he should bow to the will of the people of his State, whenever and however it may be expressed.

Speaker Clark announces himself as follows:

"I have always supported the Democratic nominee. I never bolted or scratched a Democratic ticket or nomination in my life. That is a matter of common knowledge in Missouri. Everybody knows it. I am too old to change my habits nows.

"So far as I am concerned, the decision of the Missouri Democracy settles the Presidential matter.

CUMMINS OUT FOR PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—United States Senator Albert B. Cummins of Iowa to-day formally announced himself as a candidate for President on the Republican ticket.

Senator Cummin's statement follows:

"So much has been published in the newspapers, so muhc written and said to me, concerning the Presidential matter, that I feel it my duty to make to the Republicans of Iowa a plain statement on the subject.

"Immediately on returning from the last session of Congress, I gave out to the press my opinion with regard to the Presidency. That opinion remains unaltered. The situation, however, has amterially changed, and it now seems probable that more than two candidates for the nomination will be seriously considered by the national convention. Under these conditions, if the Republicans of Iowa believe that I am a fit man to be presented to the national convention as a candidate for the Presidential nomination and desire to so present me, I will appreciate and accept their confidence as a most gratifying evidence of their con tinued faith in my purpose to serve, as best I can, the general welfare of the people."

SAYS ROOSEVELT IS CANDIDATE

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—Under the caption "Roosevelt openly a candidate for the Presidency," and referring to the visit of former Governor Fort to the New York office of Colonel Roosevelt yesterday, the Press this morning says:

> The Press is in a position to state that Colonel Roosevelt informed Fort that he would be glad to accept a nomination for the presidency; that he regretted to find so much opposition to Taft; that he does not seek a nomination against Taft, but that he will not discourage the activity of his friends. He regards these friends as having the welfare of the party solely in mind and no particular friendship for him. Should they find that the party calls him, he will respond and they are free to go and fight that issue in the primaries.
>
> Governor Fort, following his visit to Colonel Roosevelt, gave out a typewritten statement reading: "Yes, I urged Colonel Roosevelt to come out and let it be known that he is a candidate. I have no authority to speak for Colonel Roosevelt, but I know his nature and I don't believe it will be long before he will make his position clear.
>
> From this time on I and my friends will do what we can to insure delegation from New Jersey for Colonel Roosevelt."

The Press claims that the indorsement of Roosevelt by the St. Louis Republican City Committee on Tuesday night was decided by E. Montrelly after the latter had visited the colonel at Oyster Bay.

CASCARETS WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP

Salts, Calomel and Cathartic Pills Are Violent—They Act on Bowels As Pepper Acts in Nostrils.

Take a Cascaret tonight and thoroughly cleanse your Liver, Stomach and Bowels, and you will surely feel great by morning. You men and women who have headache, coated tongue, can't sleep, are bilious, nervous and upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach, or have backache and feel all worn out.

Are you keeping clean inside with Cascarets—or merely forcing a passageway every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil? This is important.

Cascarets immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the decomposed waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels.

Remember, a Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning. A 10-cent box from your druggist means a clear head and cheerfulness for months. Don't forget the children.

THEATRE FIRE IN HAVERHILL

HAVERHILL, Jan. 20.—Two firemen were injured, the night watchman was carried out unconscious, sixty guests from an adjoining hotel were forced to flee in their night clothes and a damage of $40,000 was caused by a fire which totally destroyed the Academy of Music in this city early to-day.

Rufus Krittenden, driver of Chemical A, had a leg broken and is at the Haverhill Hospital. District Chief John B. Currier sprained his ankle. Clarence Vane, watchman in the theatre, was overcome by smoke while asleep in the boiler room and rescued by Walter Green, who was himself overcome before he staggered into fresh air dragging Vane.

The Academy of Music was one of the oldest theatres in New England. It was burned and renovated in 1888. The fire is thought to have started from a match or cigarette.

Theatre Employes Celebrate.

The attaches of the theatre held a party on the stage last night, and the festivities lasted until 2 a. m. Rose Stahl's company in the "Chorus Lady" was the last to play there, and the theatre was to have been closed next Tuesday night, owing to dull times. That was how the attaches happened to be celebrating.

About 2 o'clock the merrymakers found smoke coming from the stock room under the stage. All hands, men and women, manned the fire hose and put out the blaze, as they supposed, and went home. Forty-five minutes later Patrolmen Donovan and Borderick got a strong sniff of smoke in the street as they were passing. Soon after the roof ventilators burst and flames leaped into the air like giant torches.

Entire Department Out.

Two alarms brought every bit of apparatus in commission to the scene, and Chief Gordon sent a later call for reserves. The water was pumped from the Merrimac River. The low temperature soon coated lines of hose and the fire-fighters with ice, which was a serious handicap. The fire was under control within two hours.

A chimney toppled over upon the American Hotel on How street and made a hole in the hotel roof, but all the guests had left. The guests were mostly all connected with theatrical companies, and although the frightened men and women didn't have time to dress many of the men hauled their wardrobe trunks out with them. Inmates of the tenement houses also vacated their homes, which were not injured.

Only Charred Walls Remain.

The ruined theatre was in the rear of the Academy of Music building, which fronts on Merrimack street and comprises the block between Pecker and How streets. The structure was four stories in height. The thick, fireproof walls of the theatre kept the flames so confined that the auditorium resembled a furnace. Both balconies early collapsed. Nothing but the charred walls of the theatre remain. The asbestos curtain happened to be up and that permitted the flames full play.

The theatre was leased by the William H. Smith Amusement Company of White Plains, N. Y. It is owned by the Real Estate Investment Company and was covered by insurance.

HAMMER MELLEN ENGINES INTO SPEED

WEBSTER, Jan. 20.—Webster has discovered the secret of why the New Haven trains are late in cold weather and how to remedy the defect. Complaints from Boston commuters will cease if Mr. Mellen will mount two or three men on the locomotive, with hammers, like jockeys on racehorses with whips, and have the men belabor the engines so that steam will keep up. The plan was tried on a freight engine here. It was crawling at a snail's pace. Then three men climbed on the locomotive and hammered for dear life. The poor old engine, as though responding to the attack, got some life into itself, and, slowly increasing its speed, rolled its train out of the way.

$10,000 FIRE IN PEABODY

Fire destroyed the plant of the King Philip Bottling Works at West Peabody, a two-story wooden structure in the outskirts of the town, and caused damage of $10,000.

The fire, which started in the end of the heating plant, gained considerable headway before its discovery and when the firemen arrived the place was enveloped in flames.

Sparks and burning brands threatened several tenement houses and business blocks. This kept volunteer bucket brigades busy checking incipient fires.

This is the third time that he company's works have been burned. The last time was May 10, 1910.

TAFT SEES OLD YALE HALL BURN

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 20.—President Taft, on his way to college chapel to-day, anxiously watched a fire in Connecticut Hall, the oldest structure on Yale campus, while firemen and students fought it until it was extinguished. The damage was not very great by fire, but students who roomed in the building had their effects injured by water.

The President stopped at Hotel Taft, just across from the college, being the first to occupy what is known as the presidential suite of the new hotel. President Hadley went to the hotel, and was accompanying the President back for the chapel service about 8 o'clock when the fire was discovered.

This morning's fire was the second to break out in the Yale buildings within twelve hours. About 11 o'clock last night fire was discovered in one of a number of block houses at No. 63 Prospect street, which is used by the Sheffield Scientific School as a private laboratory and owned by the school. The fire spread rapidly, the building was gutted and the contents ruined.

EXPLOSION AT CAMBRIDGE FIRE

Captain Frank Magrath of Engine No. 3 was seriously burned about the face and hands by the explosion of a can of potash during a fire which caused damage of $500 on the top floor of the five-story concrete building at Second and Spring streets, East Cambridge, early to-day.

The building is occupied by H. M. Sawyer & Sons, dealers in oiled clothing. The blaze was discovered by three persons at about the same time. Each of them sounded a different alarm and brought all the fire apparatus in Cambridge to the scene.

Flames were bursting from the windows on the top floor when the first company arrived, and the aerial ladder was raised. Captain Magrath and Captain James Furfey of Engine No. 8 hurried up with a line of hose. Captain Magrath was ahead and had just reached the window when he was blinded by the explosion of what Chief Bunker said was a can of potash.

200 DOCK STRIKE BREAKERS QUIT

Two hundred of the strike-breakers brought to Boston from New York to take the places of the striking longshoremen have returned to New York. They left their work and marched to City square, Charlestown, where they boarded cars for the North Station. Most of the men were strangers in the city, and they believed trains left that station for New York.

The crush at the North Station caused great excitement, and Patrolman Walsh with great difficulty quieted the disturbance and directed the strike breakers to the South Station. Alojyz Zmilrzynski of No. 638 East Fourteenth street, New York, collapsed and was sent to the Relief Hospital. He was found to be suffering from a severe injury to his left knee which he sustained while at work on the piers.

HESS AND COMINS HELD FOR TRIAL

Bernard Hess, a wealthy junk dealer of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Herman M. Comins of Dorchester waived examination before United States Commissioner Hayes, charged with attempting to swindle the government. Hess was held in $2,500 and Comins in $1,000 for the March term of court. Hess had contracted to purchase scrap copper and brass from the Charlestown Navy Yard. The government claims that he secreted several hundred pounds of pig iron in his wagon at the time of the purchase.

WATTS H. BOWKER OF BROOKLINE IS DEAD

Watts H. Bowker, a former selectman of Brookline, died suddenly at the corner of Morss and Walter avenues, Brookline. Death was probably due to heart disease. Mr. Bowker was seventy-five years old. For many years he was one of the Norfolk County Commissioners and of the Brookline Town Committee. He belonged to Beth Heron Lodge, A. F. and A. M. He leaves a wife and three sons, Dr. Everett M. Bowker, Arthur W. Bowker and Edward P. Bowker.

BUTTED BY GOAT, WOMAN ASKS $300

James F. Barry of Winthrop is the owner of a goat, which is the subject of a suit for $300 brought by Miss Cecilia Howell in the Municipal Civil Court. The goat was kept in an enclosure at No. 322 Border street, East Boston and, according to the evidence of Miss Howell, had escaped from the enclosure when she happened to meet it as she was walking along the street. She said the goat butted her, breaking her arm.

YOUR OWN BIG DOLL

Yes, we want to GIVE you this beautiful, golden haired doll. Nearly 2½ feet tall, and you need not spend a cent of your money to get her. But let us tell you more about this charming little lady: She cannot be broken, has cheeks like two pink roses, and with her big brown eyes and lips that look as if they wanted to be kissed, she will make you love her as soon as you see her. She is so big and fat that you will have to put her to bed in your own crib and dress her in your own outgrown clothes or some of the baby's. With a real child's dress on and a red bow that can't get lost or come untied in her bright curls, you will have a baby that all your little friends will admire, and you will love her better than your other dolls, because she is the kind that won't break, lose her eyes or snarl her hair.

This doll is stamped in beautiful colors, on strong cloth, and mamma can sew her up on the machine in ten minutes. The printed directions will tell her how to make Miss Dolly so she will sit down, bend her arms and legs, and allow you to place her in all kinds of natural positions. She has on bright red stockings and black laced boots that will not wear out or grow shabby. She is the kind of doll your grandma used to play with, only the stuffed dolly of her day had no pretty face like a little live girl. Her eyes, nose and mouth (and hair, if she had any) were made with ink or a burnt match.

Now you want this pretty baby doll, don't you? We will send it to you if you will get one friend to give you 25 cents for a year's subscription. Send the money in stamps and we will send you the doll and your friend the paper.

MARCOUX REAL PELLEAS STAR

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

"Pelleas et Melisande" was performed for the third time at the Boston opera last night. Madame Maeterlinck, Vanni Marcoux, and the other members of the original cast were heard again.

There was a large audience, although the enormous crowds which attended the first two performances did not turn out. It was hardly to be expected that they would. The novelty is wearing off the opera, and the strange lady who wears a diamond between her eyes is being taken now as a matter of course.

There are probably more Debussyites in Boston than there are in any other city, but there are not enough of them to pack a theatre night after night.

Attack Upon Debussy.

In yesterday's Symphony program reference was made to an attack upon Debussy by Raphael Cor, and there followed a symposium of the views of leading French musicians and critics upon the composer of "Pelleas et Melisande."

The enemies of Debussy do wrong to provoke discussions of his merits; they merely continue interest in him and his works.

Lots of people profess to admire "Pelleas" because they think they are displaying much culture and discrimination beyond the common in doing so. In this they are mistaken, because appreciation of Debussy is more dependent upon the state of the mind and the stomach than culture and discrimination. Some like him, some don't, that's all there is to it.

Nobody who has heard the score will deny that there are passages in it that are quite charming, there are even hints of melody, but to one who appreciates the classic composers it is as unsatisfying as a meal of bread and water.

Marcoux, the Star.

"Pelleas" is all right as a novelty, but I can see the finish of any opera house whose entire repertory consisted of such works. Fortunately in Boston we get another sort of opera most of the time.

Last night's performance was, if any, thing, smoother and more polished than ever. Mr. Caplet's orchestra could hardly be better.

Despite the excellence of Madame Maeterlinck, to the Vanni Marcoux is the star of the production. The giant bass possesses a remarkable degree of temperament and his Golaud is a mighty character. But the childlike Melisande of Maeterlinck has her charms, and so has the daintiness of Bernice Fisher, and the stolidness of Maria Gay and Lankow.

STRUBE SYMPHONY MADE FEATURE AT CONCERT

Gustav Strube, one of the violinists of the Boston Symphony Orchestra had the pleasure of hearing his Symphony in B Minor played yesterday at the Symphony concert. It was not a new sensation for Mr. Strube, whose excellent compositions have frequently appeared at these concerts. The Symphony in B Minor was first performed here in 1909.

It is an interesting work, with fresh, attractive themes, original treatment and effective harmonies, and it was performed in a manner to display all its beauties.

The soloist was Anton Witek, the concert master, who selected the Noble Concerto of Brahms in D Major, a concerto which was composed for and was first played by Joachim. It has been a favorite with Boston Symphony soloists. Witek played the cadenza composed for it by Joachim. Kreisel, who gave it twice, then the first time and one by C. M. Loeffler the second.

Mr. Witek is an admirable violinist, whose long experience in a band has not deadened his imagination or blunted the delicacy of his bow. His conception of the concerto is poetic and satisfying.

The length of the Strube Symphony and the concerto left time only for an overture and the ever lovely Beethoven Overture to "Fidelio" was selected.

FIND GAS LEAK IN LYNN HEADQUARTERS

Leaking gas and the cold created trouble at police headquarters in Lynn. The desk lieutenant traced the odor of gas to the cellar, and every window in the place was thrown open and the officers donned heavy coats. Chief Burckes telephoned the gas company for an emergency crew to repair the leaking pipes.

OPINIONS ON THE RICHESON CASE

The Richeson case, the most widely discussed of any in the criminal annals of Massachusetts, is still being discussed by thousands of the AMERICAN'S readers and in the editorial columns of New England newspapers. Some of the many letters received by the AMERICAN and several editorials which go to show the many points of view from which the case is viewed, follow:

Salem Evening News.

In the conspicuous outburst of widespread indignation over Richeson's crime, the horror excited by his criminalities, and the pronounced popular sentiment favorable to the law taking its course, regards as of secondary sympathy in his behalf has largely been silenced. People have made their feelings known. It can not be expected that they are repressed by or through the role, within the four months that must elapse before the usher of in of the week assigned for the electrocution of the vile wretch.

Springfield Union.

The action of the Governor's Council in refusing to commute the sentence of Phelps may be interpreted to mean that Richeson will go to his death for the murder of Avis Linnell. Phelps is a poor, ignorant fellow, and there was not a great deal of premeditation in his act. However, he committed murder, was found guilty in the first degree by a competent jury after an absolutely fair trial in which he was defended by able counsel, and there is no impelling reason why the punishment as prescribed by law should not be meted out to him.

In the case of Richeson, if there is a single extenuating circumstance it has not been disclosed. The murder that he committed was deliberately planned and cunningly carried out, so cunningly, in fact, that had his victim taken the deadly potion he had prepared for her at the prescribed time instead of when she did, her death might have been attributed to her own act and Richeson been free to marry riches and attain the social position he coveted.

Zion's Herald.

President George E. Horr of the Newton (Baptist) Theological Seminary, addressing the students last week Wednesday upon Rev. C. V. T. Richeson, self-confessed murderer of Avis Linnell, spoke like a prophet, as he would be expected to do, by those who know of his high Christian ideals, his passion for truth and righteousness, and his delicate sense of obligation because of his official relation to his denomination. Because of the general interest in the case, and to aid in dispelling the maudlin sentimentality which is so strangely shown in some quarters, we present some of the more significant portions of President Horr's address.

The Christian Register.

The State, the court and the counsel for the defence in the awful tragedy in Boston that has shocked the whole country, deserve high praise for the thorough, honest and honorable way in which all of them have done their duty. The legal representatives of the state made thorough work of it in their search for the motives for committing the crimes alleged and the means employed by the criminal. The counsel for the defence took up their task in the hope, if not the full expectation, of finding their client innocent; but, finding him guilty, they have put aside all the modern tricks and subterfuges, now unhappily too common in our courts and by their conduct have won the respect and sympathy of the public. The case was one such as does not challenge public attention once in a hundred years.

Plea for Justice.

Editor AMERICAN:

When we listen to the thundering voice of Jehovah justice outpleads mercy. Yet I think consideration is necessary. First, public opinion is not always wrong. And it is the mass of humanity that give impetus to the high officials.

So it may seem unfair to arpeal Richeson, not because he is a preacher, but because he is human and is a man. Here the second consideration comes in. It is not so harmful to the public and to those with whom he may be placed as it is dangerous to society and all human life. The danger lies in the fact that others are affected.

Who knows but this crime had its birth in some unpunished deed? God will do right, and while He watches the footsteps of the murderer, He also directs the way for our chief rulers. Nor does He forget the street scullion.

REV. J. H. DENNIS.

Opposes Death Penalty.

Editor AMERICAN:

Like Alice Blackwell, I am unalterably opposed to capital punishment. My opposition is not based in the very least on my opinion of the deeds or deserts of Mr. Richeson, or any other criminal, but wholly upon my great desire to have our government worthy of its high calling among men. I cannot bear to have the dear old Commonwealth of Massachusetts degrade itself by committing murder—still less by setting the example of murder before men who, with some twist in their morals or moral makeup, are almost ready for crime—least of all by compelling that one unfortunate being who must pass on the fatal current at the fatal moment to be a murderer.

I would I could persuade every man in the Legislature of Massachusetts to see this law in its true light, and right speedily to help remove this foul blot from our statutes. I say nothing of the effect of such a course upon society. I need say nothing. 'Tis right, and so I know it must be expedient. When Massachusetts stops murdering, perhaps the men within her borders will murder less.

Foster, Prison Chaplain Herbert W. Stebbins, Sheriff Pratt of Franklin County, and William C. Hill of the Associated Press.

ON ACCOUNT OF THE ICE CARNIVAL NEXT MONDAY

On account of the large number of entries for the skating races in the AMERICAN'S ice carnival, to be held at the Boston Arena on St. Botolph street, next Monday afternoon, all contestants are asked to be prompt. The carnival was to have been held on the Charles River Basin this afternoon but is postponed to Monday at the Arena on account of the condition of the ice.

Contestants should report to the clerk of the course at the Arena building as early as possible Monday afternoon. The clerk will be ready to issue racing numbers at 1 o'clock. The exact location of the clerk's table in the building will be announced in to-morrow's Sunday AMERICAN.

To-morrow's Sunday AMERICAN will also contain the full list of racing entries, with names and numbers of contestants, and other final details.

Entries Number 293.

There are 293 entries for the three championship races for men and for the three open-to-all races, as follows:

Championship quarter-mile, 30.
Championship two-mile, 30.
Championship five-mile, 40.
Open-to-all, half-mile for boys, eighteen or under, 100.
Open-to-all quarter-mile for boys, twelve or under, 50.
Open-to-all, girls, half-mile, 30.

The carnival will begin at 2 o'clock, sharp, with the hockey match. This game will be Melrose High vs. Somerville High. Following the hockey, the races and special events will be run off.

Among the special events will be an exhibition mile against time by William H. Merritt of St. John, N. B., professional world's champion.

Gordon Thompson of Spring Hill, N. S., amateur skating champion, will be at the Arena with a challenge to any New Englander for a skating match or for a jumping match on skates.

Another big special event will be a match race of one mile for a gold medal between Mrs. Frank McAllan of Fort Lee, N. J., and Miss Dolly Pedersen of this city. Mrs. McAllan comes here especially to race Miss Pedersen. Both are fast skaters.

Public Is Invited.

Admission to the Arena will be free to the public, which will be accommodated up to the Arena's seating capacity. Leonard's Savoy Band will give a concert before the games and will play between the races.

The carnival races will be run off under the direction of an unusually competent set of officials, as follows:

Referee—Matthew Mann, Brookline Gym. A. A. and supervisor of swimming for town of Brookline.

Judges—H. S. Adler of Brookline Gym. and Sc. E. A. A. U.; J. L. Mason, director of Brookline Gym., and J. A. Scott of Brookline Gym.

Clerk of Course—Stanley Phelan, treasurer of Brookline Gym. A. A.

Assistant clerks—H. Kennedy, Philip Nason, Alex. Sutherland and Louis Fatili, all of Brookline Gym.

Timers—Members of Boston Chronograph Club.

The Carnival Editor received to-day the following telegram from Allen T. Blanchard of Chicago, president of the International Skating Union:

"Boston and every outdoor sport-loving city in the United States surely appreciates the efforts of the Boston AMERICAN in promoting this ice carnival and ice races. It is a grand promotion of the grand sport and I am sure I hear of it. Shall try to be at the carnival."

BABY ON DOORSTEP OF ROXBURY HOUSE

Clad only in a cotton night dress, a thin blanket and a pair of stockings, a three-weeks-old girl baby was found on the doorsteps at No. 20 Cunningham street, Roxbury, Mrs. Arran Lieberman, who lives on the third floor, and the family of Charles Alberta, on the lower floor, were awakened by the violent ringing of their doorbells, and they found the little one on the step outside the vestibule. It was dressed in warm clothing and fed by Mrs. Lieberman, and later was taken in charge by the police of Station 10, who sent it to the Charlestown Street Home.

ALFRED G. VANDERBILT BROKE AT MONACO

MONTE CARLO, Jan. 20.—Alfred G. Vanderbilt, accompanied by two men friends, tried his luck at the tables, and it proved consistently bad.

Mr. Vanderbilt declined to buy an 850 season ticket for the private gambling rooms, but played at a particularly quiet table, taking a chair near the end croupier. He waited for several coups before staking anything, and at last ventured $20 on the last six and the same amount on the last dozen. He lost both stakes, and for about twelve coups he played the same stake, losing every time.

TAFT PARDONS INNOCENT MAN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Through the efforts of the Department of Justice, whose officials were aroused by the manner of his conviction, President Taft has signed a pardon for Oscar Krueger, a plasterer of New York city, who for eleven months has been serving time in the Federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., on an eighteen months' sentence for a crime of which he is innocent.

As the facts are related by the Department of Justice, a young woman advertised for a position in a New York newspaper and received in reply an improper letter. The writer suggested that she answer by inserting another advertisement in a certain newspaper making an appointment.

The letter to the young woman came into the possession of Anthony Comstock, who inserted an advertisement for her making an appointment. The young woman repaired to the meeting place at the appointed hour, but nobody appeared.

Fifteen minutes after the hour she saw a man across the street was regarding her with interest. It was Oscar Krueger the accused ever and they met. Guiltedthe suggestion in the letter, she asked if his name was "Ed." He replied that not, whereupon she rejoined that was not the person she was looking fo

Krueger, wishing to prolong the sing a few moments, finally declared hime was "Ed." She asked if he had rea her a letter, and he replied that ind not, but when the young woman gi started away he said he had writthe letter, although he had not and not aware of its contents.

Five Intercity Bouts at B. A. A. Tournament Tonight

By JACK CONWAY.

Five inter-city bouts between some of the best amateur boxers of New York and this city will be the feature of the windup of the big amateur boxing tournament of the B. A. A. to-night. The men are evenly matched and the members of the Unicorn organization should witness some thrilling contests.

Almost all of the Gotham mitt artists are metropolitan champions in their respective classes and have proven their worth time and again. The local boys will have to go the limit if they are to win. All of the bouts will be three rounds in duration.

Joe Hopkins, of the Irish-American A. C., is slated to meet Willie Duffy of this city in the 105-pound class. The New Yorker has made a swell record in the squared circle, and is sure to give Duffy a great battle. The latter has done some good work in the amateur boxing tourneys held in and around Greater Boston this season and has a large number of followers who believe that he will lower the colors of the New York crack.

Noonan Should Make Good.

John Noonan of Dorchester will meet Robert Glass of the Avonia A. C. in the 115-pound class. The Dorchester boy won his spurs at the last amateur show of the Exeter Street Club, and although he hasn't had a great deal of experience in championship bouts, he should make a good showing.

Herbert Atkins will make a valiant effort to bring home the bacon for the New Yorkers in the 125-pound class. He will be pitted against John Cooper of Dorchester. Cooper is a great puncher and if he can connect it will be a case of curtains for Mr. Herbert Atkins. Cooper has been training faithfully for the past two weeks with Everett Eldridge, the Neponset welterweight.

The Dorchester favorite made a great hit with the "fans" at the last tournament held by the B. A. A. He won the high honors in his class after some fine work with the padded mitts.

Henry Braun of the New Polo A. C., and James Dundon will clash in the 135-pound division. This scrap should be fast and interesting.

Many Other Bouts.

The other mill of the evening will be in the 145-pound class and will bring together John Fitzhenry of the Avonia A. C. and H. Phelan.

Besides the special bouts there will be the semi-finals and finals in the five open classes, namely, 120, 135, 145, 158 and heavyweight class. The trials were held on Wednesday night and furnished some good boxing.

"Abe Attell is all in. The featherweight champion is going down hill at a fast rate, and will be an easy mark for the top-notchers in the future," said a well-known sporting man after reading the reports of the Brown-Attell fight. But I fail to agree with him. Attell is still the most wonderful fighter in the world, even though he failed to make Knockout Brown look like a plugged nickel. He is still the same sensational boxer and cool ring general, and he can hit just as hard as the best of them when he wants to do so. But Able is an awfully wise little chap. He fights Johnny Kilbane of Cleveland at Vernon on Washington's birthday, and will pull down $6,500 as his end of the purse. The featherweight title-holder probably didn't want to take any chances "roughing it" with Brown. His impregnable defence kept Morgan's fighter at bay throughout the ten rounds, and at times Attell made Brown look like a novice. Able will soon start training for his bout with Kilbane, and after he has defeated the Forest City star—and he will do this without fail—he will return East and fight again, for by that time the fight "fans" of Gotham will have forgotten that Valentine Braun ever fought Abe Attell, and that the little wizard took things easy in order to save himself for his bout with Kilbane, and also to make sure of collecting that $6,500 in good, United States currency.

Tom O'Rourke, the veteran New York boxing promoter and manager, is a real wise guy. Yea, Bo! Sir Thomas has a white "hope" by the name of Al Palzar, who has been getting his name in the papers pretty regularly since he defeated Al Kaufman, but O'Rourke knows that his battler wouldn't have a chance if pitted against "Lil Arthar" just now. In discussing the mater with a New York newspaper man he said:

"I am in no hurry to send Palzer after Jack Johnson. Palzer is a mere boy and needs experience. If he beats Jim Flynn on February 15—which is highly probable—I will make a match with Carl Morris. I think that Palzer can whip any white man in the world to-day, and I want him to prove it before I begin to consider Johnson. There's nothing like ring experience, and Palzer, you know, has been boxing less than a year."

This Hindu Karla must have a pretty bulky bank roll when he can afford to have seven men attending to his wants twenty-four hours of each day. A troupe of this size is altogether too large for any athlete to pilot around the country. It usually retards his development and finally ends in a free-for-all fight. An American manager and an interpreter should be enough for any wrestler to have.

Tenney has not been heard from since he wired that he was not a free agent, but expected soon to be at liberty to discuss his future.

HARVARD MEETS TIGERS TONIGHT

THE LINEUP.

HARVARD.		PRINCETON.
Pierce, Reeves, r.w.	l.w.	McKinney
Duncan, c.	c.	Kuhn
Huntington, r.	r.	Baker
Sortwell, l.w.	r.w.	Kay
Blackall, c.p.	c.p.	Emmons
Willetts, p.	p.	Blair
Gardner, g.	g.	Kalbfleisch

Another packed house is anticipated at the arena this evening when the hockey teams of Harvard and Princeton clash for the second time this season. Harvard got the verdict over the Orange and Black team last week in New York after one of the hardest games that was ever seen in the big city, and from all indications the game to-night will be a repetition of that battle.

Harvard is out for another win, for they do not want the Tigers to get a look-in for the college championship which they would claim if they defeat Harvard and then go out and win the Interfollegiate League title.

In the last game Harvard won against a superior offence by its almost flawless defence. The body checking of the defensive men was the best seen in New York, Blackwell and Willetts breaking up many lightning rushes by the Princeton forwards. It was in this line of work that the Harvard team was enabled to win, and it is expected that the defensive play will be just as strong when they clash to-night.

The Harvard forwards are likely to be outplayed by the Princeton forwards. Sortwell, Duncan, Hunting and Pierce are all good men and can hold their own, but the great individual playing of Baker, the clever rover, is enough to break up the combination, and he will get the puck by the forwards many times and down into dangerous territory.

The Princeton defensive men are not as strong as the Harvard men, but still they are always in the game and give their opponents a lot of opposition on each play.

Basketball Notes

Manager Seiniger of the Cambridge Independents is on the trail of some of these would-be champion semi-professional fives. He has money anywhere from $25 to $100 in greenbacks and says that it is the real stuff. He also states that some of the other teams are afraid to put up, and in the way of being charitable he is willing to play them on the condition that he receives a guarantee if his team wins and nothing if they lose. This list includes: Foxboro, Notre Dames, Franklin and the Clark Five of Stoughton. Manager S. Seiniger, No. 56 St. Botolph street, city.

The Ford Memorial Branch Y. M. C. A. Juniors of Roxbury are making a fine showing on the floor this season, having won eleven games to date, defeating such teams as the Thornton A. A. of Winthrop, Roxbury's Boys' Institute, Castle Ascension Five and other strong teams averaging 100-105 pounds. The lineup includes: Bostrom, Boyd, Wheeler, Brackman, Fowler and Saunders. Teams desiring games should write to Manager Charles W. Newman, No. 1173 Tremont street, Roxbury.

Manager Henry Torny of the Marshall A. C. says that his team was not defeated by the Newsboys. The team that was defeated by the Newsboys was the Marshall Jrs. Games with the Somerville Boys' Club, Thornton A. A. and Revere High School 2nd team preferred. Manager Henry L. Torny, No. 146 Lincoln street, Winthrop.

The Woburn A. A. would like to arrange games with any of the fast teams in the State away from home. The lineup includes such stars as Carroll, formerly of Bates College; Peterson, formerly of the Reading Y. M. C. A.; McDonald, formerly of Mercersburg Academy; Curtin, formerly of Medford High, and McKittrick, formerly of Rochester University. Games with Co. K of Hingham, Co. D of Plymouth, Fort Andrews five, Milton Gym., Cambridge White Sox and Stoughton five preferred. Manager Edward O'Connor, No. 24 Buckman street, Woburn.

The Fitton A. C. of East Boston would like to arrange games with the fastest 135-pound teams in the State. Manager E. H. Kerr, No. 90 Chelsea street, East Boston.

The North Attleboro Independents is anxious to arrange dates with the fastest 135-pound teams in the State away from home. Would like to hear from Sherman & Brown of Plymouth. A fair guarantee expected. Manager Wilson Rollinson, P. O. Box 104, North Attleboro.

The Dorchester Heights Quintet of South Boston, is anxious to book games with strong teams throughout the State averaging 125 pounds. Columbias of South Boston, Co. K of Hingham, and Brockton Y. M. C. A. preferred. Manager D. Kendrick, No. 34 G street, South Boston.

The Weston A. A. of Roxbury has a few open dates to fill at home on Tuesday nights and would like to hear from the St. Mary's of Charlestown, and other fast teams. Manager Frank Taggett, No. 128 Cabot street, Roxbury.

Baseball News and Gossip

Owner Gaffney and President Ward of the Pilgrims have decided upon their next season's uniforms and it looks as if the players will be one natty looking lot. The home uniform will be made out of white flannel with full red stockings and on the road the players will have a pearl gray outfit with red stockings and a gray sweater. It is also the plan of the president to have an outline of an Indian's head on the pocket of the blouses, but this have not been fully decided upon.

* * *

Hughey Jennings has started to predict things for the 1912 season. He says that the Athletics should be favorites, but he will not concede the pennant to any team until the final game of the season has been played. "Detroit will surely be as strong in 1912 as it was in 1911," he says. "New York should be stronger, the same is true of Boston, Cleveland and Chicago, and these facts will make it harder sledding for the Athletics. As to how the teams will finish, that is impossible to state. It is out of the question even to try to forecast the result."

* * *

About two years ago Frank J. Navin, owner of the Detroit Tigers and part owner of the Providence Grays, suggested to Ban Johnson that baseball take care of its own. Navin pointed out that the game was prosperous beyond expectations, but that while baseball has become a gigantic institution, some of the men who have helped it to the present state of popularity and financial success were in want and some in extreme poverty. The suggestion that came from Navin was that each league should set aside a day each Summer and play a championship game on that day, the proceeds of which would be turned over to the fund that would take care of the players who are in need. It was also one of Navin's plans to have a home built for old ball players, the owners to contribute annually, besides the gate from the benefit game. Jimmy Callahan, manager of the Chicago White Sox, renewed that suggestion this week, and it is hoped by many that something will be done this time.

* * *

Shuffling the cards to get a good hand is a little trick that seldom succeeds, but still baseball men do it each season. Next year it looks as if the managers of the Red Sox and the Washington team will be the ones to shuffle the cards. A youngster on each of these teams may be seen next year playing a new position. Steve Yerkes of the Red Sox may play second base instead of the shortstop position. Eddie Ainsmith of the Senators may be switched to the outfield this season. The recruit proved to be a bundle of speed in the games that he played in the American League last year and was a good hitter, but he lacked the experience of a finished infielder, so the new manager will shift the man to the outfield and try to make him a great fielder and up with the leaders in the batting column.

* * *

One will think that an international circus is hitting the town when the Cincinnati team arrives for a series. Many dialects will be spoken on the Red team and it might produce a fortune for a vaudeville producer if he could get them all by phonograph and then supply them to good comedians in the "big time" circuits. There will be a rich Swedish accent by Dahlgren; the soothing Norwegian speech of Henry Severoid; soft Southern intonations by Suggs, Benton, Prough and Bagby; Spanish lisps by Marsans and Almeida, dental remarks from Dr. Hoblitzell, Pittsburg language from Frank Smith, and the quaint brand of talk spoken around "Jolsey" City and Long Island by Ismond and Clarke.

BROOKS AND DUFFY IN 10-ROUND DRAW

NORTH ADAMS, Jan. 20.—Terry Brooks of New York and "Freddie" Duffy of Boston, boxed a ten-round draw before the Western Gateway A. C. of this city. Both boys were on their feet fighting hard at the finish with honors about even. In the semi-windup Kid Rosch and Frankie Sheehan of Springfield boxed a six-round draw. Young Josie and Bat Denno of Adams went four rounds to a draw in the preliminary.

BOWLING TITLE LIST OF ALLEYS

Up to to-day the following alleys have made application and been accepted as official in holding the preliminary or qualifying round of five consecutive strings in the Boston AMERICAN Bowling Championship Contest.

Owners of alleys not in the list can be added by making application to the Bowling Editor between now and January 28, the date of closing of entries for bowlers wishing to compete. The official alleys:

Greater Boston District—Adams Square, No. 165 Washington street; Boylston, No. 120 Boylston street; Carruth, No. 46 Hanover street; Chauncy Street, No. 36 Chauncy street; Elite, No. 258 Washington street; Murray & Irwin, No. 1156 Washington street; Old Colony, No. 87 Summer street; Boston, No. 100 Arch street; Chelsea Square and Congress, Chelsea; Auditorium and local, Malden; Everett Square, Everett; Knight's, Woburn; Revere, in Revere; Prospect, Cambridge; Sullivan Square, Charlestown; Roxbury Crossing, No. 1132 Columbus av.; President Belmont and Hill's, Waltham; Maverick Square, East Boston; Brighton Centre, No. 371 Washington street, Brighton; Union Square, No. 341 Somerville avenue, Somerville.

Massachusetts: Cities and Towns—Buick and Donohue Corner, Lynn; Les Miserables, Lowell; Majestic, Lawrence; Norman, Salem; D. K. Maine—Monument Square, Portland; Y. M. C. A., Bar Harbor.

Vermont—Buzzell, Barre.

Rhode Island—Brunswick, Woonsocket.

It will be seen that some of the cities and towns have neglected in applying for official alleys in the contest. Alley owners should at once attend to this and be listed for the accommodation of their bowlers. No city or town is limited to the use of one alley. If alleys are regulation they will be admitted by applying to the Bowling Editor.

The following is a complete list of the cities and towns in New England eligible to the bowlers entering in the contest:

Maine—Portland, Bangor and Bar Harbor.

New Hampshire—Manchester, Dover, Nashua, Laconia, Berlin and Portsmouth.

Vermont—Burlington, Barre and Brattleboro.

Massachusetts—Holyoke, North Adams, Springfield, Pittsfield, Worcester, Fitchburg, Lowell, Lawrence, Haverhill, Lynn, Salem, Gloucester, South Framingham, New Bedford, Brockton, Fall River, Taunton, Natick, Midleboro and Provincetown.

Rhode Island—Providence, Woonsocket and Pawtucket.

Connecticut—Hartford, Bridgeport, New Haven and New London.

Now, come on boys with your entries. The Boston AMERICAN Bowling Championship Contest has for its object the picking of a champion for the sport. To the winner the AMERICAN gives $100 in cash, or the amount in a trophy if the victor be an amateur. Other prizes will shortly be announced.

In the preliminary or qualifying round five consecutive strings to be rolled. Each entrant has only one chance, when he has bowled the five strings he has finished for that round.

Each sending in an entry will receive in return mail a card filled out certifying to his being eligible, and this card must be given to the alley owner or manager just before the bearer begins to roll his five strings. The alley owner or manager will then, at the conclusion of the bowling, put the scores for each string and total of the five strings on the card, sign the same, and have two reputable citizens, who have seen the strings bowled, sign their names.

Use the blank printed in another column. The highest pinfall will win the final. Twenty strings in the final, ten strings rolled on consecutive nights. Send entries to Bowling Editor, Boston AMERICAN, Boston, Mass.

HARDY AND PIKE WIN OVER HYDE PARK MEN

At Taylor's Hyde Park Alleys, Frank Hardy of Lynn and Bob Pike, the manager of the Haywood Alleys, defeated M. Nims and Taylor in a ten-string match for a side bet, winning by sixty-five pins. The home team took an early lead, but the Boston team made it tie game in the sixth string, and then went out for the laurels. Hardy was high man of the evening with 985 for a total, and Pike had 972. Taylor got 951, and Nims rolled for 941.

BIG BASKETBALL GAMES TONIGHT

Three interesting contests are scheduled in the Greater Boston Basketball League to-night. The Quincy A. A. five will play the St. Alphonsus A. A. at Roxbury, the St. Marys meet the Lynn Y. M. C. A. at Lynn, and the Father Mathews journey to East Milton to tackle the Cunningham gym.

Quincy is following close on the heels of the Cathedral and St. Joseph fives and will go after every basket to win from the St. Alphonsus team to-night. The latter team has been showing steady improvement in every game and will make the visitors hustle to win.

The Lynn Y. M. C. A. quintet should win from the St. Marys of the North End. However, the latter team is full of surprises and may spring one on the home team to-night. The North End boys have had their ups and downs since the opening of the season, and are out for a win to-night.

Unless the Father Mathews Five of Cambridge shows a wonderful improvement it cannot expect to win from the Cunningham Gym to-night. The latter team has played wonderful basketball on its home court all season, having given the St. Josephs the hardest battle of the season before its defeats.

The Father Mathews team has been coming along at a slow, but sure rate, and will have to be considered in the race before the season has gone much further.

GOLF ASSOCIATION ELECTS OFFICERS

The Massachusetts Golf Association at its annual meeting was forced to accept the resignation of two of its officers who have served continuously since the association started, Secretary R. Freeman of Wollaston and Treasurer Edmand M. Conant. Henry Wilder of the Vesper Club of Lowell was chosen as the new secretary, and R. R. Alden of Springfield as the new treasurer. Herbert Jacques of the Brookline Country Club and Charles T. Crocker of Wollaston were re-elected president and vice-president respectively.

AL SHRUBB SETS UP NEW TEN-MILE MARK

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Jan. 20.—Al Shrubb, the English champion runner, won the world's record running championship and also set up a new world's record for ten miles, defeating Billy Quell, the American champion, in the fast time of 49:9 2-5. This lowered the old record down from 51:55. The runners ran a wonderful race from the starting gun, and throughout the ten miles both men started many sprints that lasted several laps.

NEW RECORD PLUNGE.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 20.—The University of Pennsylvania defeated Columbia in a dual swimming meet, 42 points to 11, and at water polo 6 goals to 0. Willis, the Pennsylvania captain, broke the intercollegiate record for plunging for distance with a plunge of 75 feet.

ZBYSZKO STARTS HARD TRAINING

Zbyszko, the big Polish wrestler, is a glutton for work, judging by the amount of work he did this morning at a private Back Bay gym, where he is putting on the finishing touches for his match with Karla, the Hindu, which is to be decided in Mechanics Building on Monday night.

Zbyszko used every piece of apparatus in the place and then wound up with several stiff sessions with his wrestling partners in which he showed speed that was surprising for a man of his physique and strength.

In fact, those who were present and have seen the Pole in action before remarked on his improvement in the American style of catch-as-catch can wrestling, and the way he used his legs and feet indicated that he is at least 100 per cent. better than when he first showed in Boston and fully 50 per cent. better than when he met Roller in Boston a year ago.

When Zbyszko had finished he weighed 245 pounds, but so well distributed is this weight that he does not look so formidable. He is built on squatty lines, while Karla is more of the greyhound type. The latter stands 6 feet 2 inches and weighs 230 pounds.

It is expected that one of the biggest crowds of the season will be on hand to witness the three first-class matches on the card.

EXETER STAR OUT FOR OLYMPIC TEAM

William J. Bingham, captain of the Exeter Academy track team, will be a candidate for the American Olympic team next Spring, according to Coach George Connors of the academy team. Bingham is one of the best half-milers ever produced at Exeter. He is the present holder of the world's interscholastic outdoor half-mile record, 1m 57 2-5s, which was made in the Andover-Exeter meet at Andover May 30, last year.

MATTY BALDWIN IN DRAW WITH REDMOND

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Jan. 20.—Jack Redmond of Milwaukee earned a good draw with Matty Baldwin, the Boston lightweight, in a fast twelve-round bout before the members of the Olympic Club. Baldwin could not get Redmond into a mixup, the former being content at boxing at a long range and holding his own in this style. The Milwaukee boy used a lot of clever footwork and ducking, and Baldwin could not land a telling blow.

A Singular-Odd Story

TWO men stood in the street watching the airship.
"That's odd," said one.
"Singular," replied the other.
"I said odd."
"And I said singular."
"Odd!"
"Singular!"
They glared at each other.
"You're a fool!" exclaimed the one.
"You're an idiot!" exclaimed the other.
"An odd fool!"
"A singular idiot!"
Then they laid off and began to clean up each other. In the police court next morning explanations were required and cheerfully given.
"I said it was odd," remarked the man with the black eye, "and he insisted it was singular. We couldn't agree, so we fought. I licked him. Do you blame me? A thing can't be odd and singular at the same time—any child can tell you that. Take the number '3,' for instance; that's odd. But it isn't singular, is it?"
"Try the figure '1,'" suggested the man with the abbreviated nose, as he gently patted the place where his ear used to be.
"I hadn't thought of that," responded the other. "Now I come to think of it, that's both odd and singular. But you weren't referring to '1' in our discussion yesterday, were you?"
"Of course I was. Couldn't you see the airship was one? It was singular, wasn't it?"
"It was. And it was also odd, wasn't it?"
"It was."
The combatants shook hands.
"Gentlemen," said the Court, with a smile, "I have been much interested in this discussion. Your sentence will be neither odd nor singular. Two months."

Desperate Desmond

Copyright, 1911, by the National News Association

Brave Claude Eclaire, with his little machine gun, defies Desmond and all his Turkish friends to take Rosamond from him. And alongside Claude stands the temerarious war correspondent, Reckless Hardy Shavus, U. S. A., who proposes to take moving pictures of the attack and thus convict Desmond of having treacherously sided with the Turks.

Desmond, while not afraid to risk his life at times, does not believe in needlessly exposing his miserable self to leaden messages from a machine gun. So he begins to paint a Red Cross sign, knowing that Claude, at whatever cost, will refrain from firing on that badge. Further, it will prevent R. H. Shavus from taking any moving pictures.

As the villain had guessed, Claude is too gallant to fire on the Red Cross even although he believes it is being used as a means to entrap him and the beautiful Rosamond. The camera man also stops his machine, lest a stray shot should be fired, and his pictures convince the world that Claude's party had failed to recognize the international badge of mercy.

Again Desmond is victor. Through his treacherous plot he has captured Claude, Rosamond and the Great War Correspondent. Of course, such things are but incidents in the lives of a hero and an up-to-date correspondent, but it is rough on a girl, however brave she may be. So it goes, though, in this world, and Rosamond cannot escape the common lot of less beautiful mortals.

Even the great Reckless Hardy Shavus must bow to the iron will of Desmond. With a malign grin, the villain orders the correspondent to destroy the film on which was pictured one of his crimes. This done, he orders a new film to be placed in the camera, and Shavus, wondering what the villain's purpose may be, is forced to comply or be wiped out like a stray Arab.

"I'm the boy!" cries Desperate Desmond, "and I'll make a monkey out of Claude." That unhappy hero is compelled to fire at a dummy rigged up like an Italian soldier, while Shavus, U. S. A., must take moving pictures of the incident. On the film it will then appear that Claude has been guilty of gross treachery. How Desmond's vile plan succeeds will be shown Monday.

BEGIN TO-DAY! Arnold Bennett's Great Mystery Story

Below is printed a short section of the big first instalment to be printed in to-morrow's Sunday AMERICAN of Arnold Bennett's great mystery story, "The Prince and the Plutocrat; or, The Great Babylon Hotel." Don't fail to read the big instalment of this remarkable serial in to-morrow's Sunday AMERICAN.

By ARNOLD BENNETT

The Millionaire and the Waiter

"YES sir?"

Jules, the celebrated head waiter of the Grand Babylon, was bending formally toward the alert, middle-aged man who had just entered the smoking room.

It was 7:45 on a particular sultry June night, and dinner was about to be served at the Grand Babylon.

Men of all sizes, ages and nationalities, but every one alike arrayed in faultless evening dress, were dotted about the large, dim apartment. A faint odor of flowers and the tinkle of a fountain came from the conservatory.

The waiters, commanded by Jules, moved softly across the thick Oriental rugs, balancing their trays with the dexterity of a juggler, and receiving and executing orders with that air of profound importance of which only really first-class waiters have the secret.

The atmosphere was an atmosphere of serenity and repose, characteristic of the Grand Babylon. It seemed impossible that anything could occur to mar the peaceful, aristocratic monotony of existence, in that perfectly managed establishment.

Yet, on that night was to happen the mightiest upheaval that the Grand Babylon had ever known.

"Yes, sir," repeated Jules, and this time there was a shade of august disapproval in his voice; it was not usual for him to have to address a customer twice.

"Oh!" said the alert, middle-aged man, looking up at length.

Beautifully ignorant of the identity of the great Jules, he allowed his gray eyes to twinkle as he caught sight of the expression on the waiter's face.

"Bring me an angel kiss."

"Pardon, sir."

"Bring me an angel kiss, and be good enough to lose no time."

"If it's an American drink, I fear we don't keep it, sir."

The voice fell icily distinct and several men glanced around uneasily, as if to deprecate the slightest disturbance of their calm.

The appearance of the person to whom Jules was speaking, however, reassured them somewhat, for he had all the look of that expert, the traveled Englishman, who can differentiate between one hotel and another by instinct, and who knows at once where he may make a fuss with propriety, and where it is advisable to behave exactly as at a club.

An Exclusive Hotel

The Grand Babylon was a hotel in whose smoking room one behaved as though one was at one's club.

"I didn't suppose you did, but you can mix it, I guess, even in this hotel."

"This isn't an American hotel, sir."

The calculated insolence of the words was cleverly masked beneath an accent of humble submission.

The alert, middle-aged man sat up straight and gazed placidly at Jules, who was pulling his famous red side-whiskers.

"Get a liquor glass," he said, half curtly and half with good-humored tolerance. "Pour into it equal quantities of maraschino, cream and creme de menthe. Don't stir it; don't shake it. Bring it to me. And, I say, tell the bartender——"

"Bartender, sir?"

"Tell the bartender to make a note of the recipe, as I shall probably want an angel kiss every evening before dinner so long as this weather lasts."

"I will send the drink to you, sir," said Jules distantly.

That was the parting shot, by which he indicated that he was not as other waiters are, and that any person who treated him with disrespect did so at his own peril.

A few minutes later, while the alert, middle-aged man was testing the angel kiss, Jules sat in conclave with Miss Spencer, who had charge of the office of the Grand Babylon.

This office was a fairly large chamber, with two sliding glass partitions which overlooked the entrance hall and the smoking room.

Only a small portion of the clerical work of the great hotel was performed there. The place served chiefly as the lair of Miss Spencer, who was as well known and as important as Jules himself.

Her age—none knew it, save herself, and perhaps one other; and none cared. The gracious and alluring contours of her figure were irreproachable, and in the evenings she was a useful ornament which any hotel might be innocently proud of.

Her knowledge of Bradshaw, of steamship services and the programs of theatres and music halls was unrivalled; yet she never travelled, she never went to a theatre or music hall.

She seemed to spend the whole of her time in that official lair of hers, imparting information to guests, telephoning to the various departments, or engaged in intimate conversation with her special friends on the staff, as at present.

Mr. Racksole, of New York

"Who's No. 107?" Jules inquired.

Miss Spencer examined her ledger.

"Mr. Theodore Racksole, New York."

"I thought he must be a New Yorker," said Jules, after a brief, significant pause; "but he talks as good English as you or I. Says he wants an 'angel kiss'—maraschino and cream, if you please—every night. I'll see he doesn't stop here too long."

Miss Spencer smiled grimly in response. The nation of referring to Theodore Racksole as "a New Yorker" appealed to her sense of humor, a sense in which she was not deficient.

She knew, of course, and she knew that Jules knew, that this Theodore Racksole must be the unique and only Theodore Racksole, the third richest man in the United States, and, therefore, in the world.

Nevertheless, she ranged herself at once on the side of Jules.

Just as there was only one Racksole, so there was only one Jules; and Miss Spencer instinctively shared the latter's indignation at the spectacle of any person whatever, millionaire or emperor, presuming to demand an "angel kiss," that unreasonable concoction of maraschino and cream, within the precincts of the Grand Babylon.

In the world of hotels it was currently stated that, next to the proprietor, there were three gods at the Grand Babylon—Jules, the head waiter; Miss Spencer, and most powerful of all, Rocco, the renowned chef, who earned two thousand a year and had a chalet on the Lake of Lucerne.

All the great hotels in Northumberland avenue and on the Thames Embankment had tried to get Rocco away from the Grand Babylon, but without success.

Rocco was well aware that even he could rise no higher than to be maitre d'hotel of the Grand Babylon, which, though it never advertised itself, and didn't belong to a limited company, stood an easy first among the hotels of Europe—first in expensiveness, first in exclusiveness, first in that mysterious quality known as "style."

The Grand Babylon counted that day wasted on which it did not entertain at lowest a German Prince or the marharajah of some Indian State.

When Felix Babylon—after whom, and not with any reference to London's nickname, the hotel was christened—when Felix Babylon founded the hotel in 1869, he had set himself to cater for royalty, and that was the secret of his triumphant eminence.

The son of a rich Swiss hotel proprietor and financier, he had contrived to establish a connection with the officials of several European courts, and he had not spared money in that respect.

It was not good form to mention prices at the Grand Babylon; the prices were enormous, but you never spoke of them. At the conclusion of your stay a bill was presented, brief and void of dry details, and you paid it without a word.

If there was one thing more than another that amazed the Grand Babylon—put its back up, so to speak—it was to be compared with or to be mistaken for an American hotel.

The Grand Babylon was resolutely opposed to American methods of eating, drinking and lodging—but especially American methods of drinking.

The resentment of Jules on being requested to supply Mr. Theodore Racksole with an angel kiss will therefore be appreciated.

"Anybody with Mr. Theodore Racksole?" asked Jules, continuing his conversation with Miss Spencer.

He put a scornful stress on every syllable of the guest's name.

"Miss Racksole—she's in No. 111."

Jules paused and stroked his left whisker as it lay on his gleaming white collar.

"She's where?" he queried, with a peculiar emphasis.

"No. 111. I couldn't help it. There was no other room with a bathroom and dressing room on that floor."

Miss Spencer's voice had an appealing tone of excuse.

"Why didn't you tell Mr. Theodore Racksole and Miss Racksole that we were unable to accommodate them?"

"Because Babs was in hearing."

Only three people in the wide world ever dreamed of applying to Mr. Felix Babylon the playful but mean abbreviation, Babs. Those three were Jules, Miss Spencer and Rocco.

Jules had invented it; no one but he would have had either the wit or the audacity to do so.

"You'd better see that Miss Racksole changes her room to-night," Jules said, after another pause. "Leave it to me; I'll fix it. Au revoir. It's three minutes to 8. I shall take charge of the dining room myself to-night."

At 8 o'clock precisely dinner was served in the immense salle-a-manger, that chaste yet splendid apartment of white and gold.

At a small table near one of the windows a young lady sat alone. Her frock said Paris, but her face unmistakably said New York.

It was a self-possessed and bewitching face—the face of a woman thoroughly accustomed to doing exactly what she liked, when she liked, how she liked—the face of a woman who had taught hundreds of gilded young men the true art of fetching and carrying, and who by twenty years or so of parental spoiling had come to regard herself as the feminine equivalent of the Czar of all the Russias.

COUNTRY WILD OVER REAL HAIR GROWER

True Method Discovered at Last

$100.00 Reward If They Fail—Read Guarantee.

That the American people are very quick to recognize an article of real merit is proven by the rapidly increasing demand for Radizene, a remarkable new treatment for the hair which has recently been discovered. While this new treatment for baldness, dandruff, gray hair, falling hair, itching scalp, etc., is remarkably simple, it is a fact that nothing like it has ever been placed on the market before, although it can readily be seen by the treatment that this is the only safe and sane, common sense treatment, and that the success must follow in an astonishingly short space of time.

The proprietors of this remarkable treatment realize the fact that the public has had so much unsatisfactory experience with worthless treatments that a preparation of real merit is likely to be classed as a simple "hair tonic," and after giving the Radizene treatment a severe test in some of the worst cases of baldness, dandruff, falling hair, grayness, itching scalp, they guarantee satisfactory results or money back.

Upon receiving the coupon below, the Radizene Laboratory will send their guarantee, which tells all about the $100.00 reward, to all readers of the Boston American, together with full, free information regarding the new treatment. Bought and Paid For

The Story of the New Play by George Broadhurst

TO-DAY'S INSTALMENT

By John A. Moroso

Copyright, 1911, by George Broadhurst.

PART ONE—(Continued)

"YOU bought me, but you did not buy my self-respect. And no matter what happens, I am going to keep THAT."

"It's the last thing in the world I would have you lose," he said.

"Then why do you rob me of it?" she demanded. "Why do you come to me, as you did last night, and insult and degrade me?"

"I'm sorry, dear."

"So you have told me before and I have cried and have suffered and have forgiven you, and have prayed that it would never happen again."

She paused to control her voice and the emotion that came upon her.

"And now, dear," she added, "I'm not going to cry any more and it will not happen again."

"You mean?" asked Stafford.

"I mean that we must have a definite understanding," she said. "There are only two ways in which I can keep my self-respect. One is that you must promise me never to drink again."

"I will agree to try; I am not sure that I could keep such a promise."

"No, dear, that will not do," Virginia insisted. "You have done that before. You are a big man and a strong man. You are not a weakling. You must stop, or——"

"Or what?" asked Stafford.

"I shall leave you."

"Leave me!"

"Yes; I shall and must do it."

"Your mind is made up?"

"Yes."

"Then it is an ultimatum?"

"Yes."

"And you want my answer, here and now?"

"Yes."

"Very well, then, you shall have it. I won't promise."

"Oh! Robert, dear!"

"No," he replied firmly. "I can't be driven and I won't be bullied. No man, by holding a revolver to my head, can force me to do anything I don't want to do, nor can any woman, either, not even you."

"Very well," said Virginia, holding back her tears as she saw the way of parting spreading before her.

Hurried from Room.

"Besides," said Stafford, "there has to be a head of every family as there has to be a head of every business, and so long as I have any family I am going to be the head of it. If I had a partner and he came to me and said, 'Do this thing or I quit you,' I'd reply, 'Go ahead and quit,' whether the thing he wanted was right or wrong, because from that moment on he and not I would be boss. So it is with us."

"Then—I am—to—go?" asked Virginia.

"That is for you to say," he said in even tones, "but if you do go, remember that it is of your volition."

"Good-by."

As if to keep herself in her resolve, Virginia hurried from the room and into the street.

THROUGH Fanny, Stafford made every fair and considerate effort to bring Virginia back to her home and her wifely duties.

Virginia had even left her wedding ring. She did not take a thing other than the clothes she wore.

Failing to achieve anything, Stafford then endeavored to have Virginia accept an allowance. He not only failed in this, but was astounded when he learned that Virginia had made Jimmie resign his place in his office and that once more his wife was seeking employment.

Stafford, after his period of remorse had passed, felt that, however poorly he might have behaved as a husband, the fact remained that he loved his wife devotedly and that she had deliberately left him. He sent her word that her home would be ready for her all the time, but that he would never come to her and ask her to return.

All that wealth and happiness could give human beings was now swept away from the two working girls who had risen to prosperity and riches.

Had Saved a Little

Fanny had saved a little money from Jimmie's salary, but it was not enough to guarantee them from poverty for a longer period than six weeks or two months.

"Here is where we get out of this swell apartment," she announced to Virginia and Jimmie, after carefully figuring just where they stood financially. "We will manage to get along without an elevator, without a servant, without a bellboy, without a theatre, without the opera and a number of other things we have been enjoying."

There was a hint of bitterness in her voice.

"And without the $150 a week salary I enjoyed for almost half a day," added Jimmie sorrowfully. "Also without that automobile."

It was out of the question for Fanny to go to work again because of the baby. Some one would have to do the managing at home and Fanny undertook that while Virginia began her rounds of places seeking work.

She found that there was a long list of telephone operators ahead of her and that she could not hope for steady employment in that line for a half year at the earliest. She turned her attention, then, to the shops, and once again Johnny had an idea and through Marie Magruder, the forelady, secured her a place as a saleswoman at seven dollars a week, the same pay Fanny had earned before their days of wealth and luxury began.

Utterly crestfallen and discouraged, Jimmie reported at his old place, and there Mr. Kitties managed to get him back his job as third assistant shipping clerk at twelve dollars a week.

With a total income of nineteen dollars a week, to keep the family alive and sheltered, Fanny allowed twelve dollars a month for rent.

Getting a flat for twelve dollars a month in New York meant bearing of many hardships. They found, in one of the most crowded sections of the Upper East Side, far over by the East River, a tenement where four tiny, dark rooms, four flights up, could be had for the money.

SEE ME HERE! I LOOKED AS FAT AS AN OX BEFORE I REDUCED MY FAT

HERE I AM AFTER REDUCING 37 LBS. IN FIVE WEEKS WITH MY HARMLESS HOME TREATMENT

THE JOY OF LIVING IS THE HERITAGE OF THE LEAN, I WAS STOUT—AND I KNOW

My friends were charitable and they called it obesity; others referred to me as being STOUT, but I know, it was just plain bulky weight. I was miserable—you, too, are equally miserable if you are too stout.

To reduce your weight you must find the cause; you must get at the very reason.

I FOUND THE CAUSE—THE REST WAS EASY

Before I succeeded, I tried everything within reason and some things beyond reason.

It was maddening—disgusting.

All I had to do was to remove the cause, and I swear under oath, that by my simple method, without drugs, medicine, harmful exercises or starvation diet, I reduced my weight 37 pounds in five weeks, and guarantee that I can do the same for you. I do not use medicine of any kind or worthless stuff to rub on the body, but a simple home treatment; even a child can use it without harm. Through this marvelous combination home treatment, I succeeded because I had found the right way. I can now climb to the summit of Pike's Peak with ease. I could not do that until I had taken off 37 pounds of my ponderous weight.

If you are interested in your own happiness and health and figure, you will permit me to tell you how to reduce your weight "Nature's Way."

It is astonishing the thousands of grateful letters I am receiving. J. E. Boiselle, Box 422, Great Bend, Kansas, writes that he lost fifty pounds with my harmless treatment. W. L. Schmitz, Montevideo, Minnesota, lost thirty pounds in thirty days. Mamie McNelly, Desloge, Missouri, writes that she lost sixty-five pounds with this new method, and I can send you thousands of names of satisfied customers who have given me permission to use their names. I never publish any name without written permission.

I have printed a book for you entitled "Weight Reduction Without Drugs," which I am giving away without charge, prepaid to you, so that you may know of my successful method and be able to permanently reduce your weight any amount up to seventy pounds, without harmful exercises or starvation diet, drugs or medicines.

I WILL SEND THIS BOOK TO YOU AT MY EXPENSE.

Send for my book, "Weight Reduction Without Drugs." It is yours for the asking, and I will be glad to send it to you, postage prepaid.

I have found that the best way to know happiness is to give it.

Sincerely your friend,

MARJORIE HAMILTON

Suite 5084, Central Bank Building, Denver, Colo.

Every reader of this paper, who has the slightest interest in Miss Hamilton's remarkable new treatment, should write her promptly for all she agrees to send free, for as she has said, her book "Weight Reduction Without Drugs," is entirely free; you have everything to gain and nothing to lose; but the book is expensive and you may, if you wish, send a two-cent stamp to help pay postage.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS; FINANCIAL NEWS

STOCKS HIGHER AND IN DEMAND

STATE STREET, Jan. 20.—Closing—The opening prices of stocks ranged a little higher. Trading was brisk after the first few minutes.

In the local market coppers developed strength during the session. East Butte was a leader.

The New York market was broader at the start. There were 226,000 shares sold in the first hour. There was vigorous buying in the leading railroads and industrials. Reading was prominent. It advanced more than 2 points in early transactions. Atchison, Steel, Baltimore & Ohio and Union Pacific were all higher soon after the opening.

There was some shading off in prices at the close, but no reaction.

In the Boston market East Butte closed at 13⅞, up ¼; Old Colony at 5⅝, off ⅛; Adventure at 6⅝, up ⅛; Giroux at 4½, off ⅛; Franklin at 12¾, up ⅜; Trinity at 6⅜, up ⅛; Arizona Commercial at 3 11-16, up ¼.

The average closing price of sixteen leading stocks in the New York market was 123⅝, or ¼ higher than yesterday, or 5¼ below the highest and 9⅝ above the lowest in 1911.

Reading closed at 158, up ⅛; St. Paul at 108, up ½; Steel at 67⅝, up ¼; Southern Pacific at 110⅝, up ⅜; Union Pacific at 168⅝, up ¼; Lehigh Valley at 167⅛, ⅜; Baltimore & Ohio at 106¼, up ¼; Canadian Pacific at 231⅝, off ¼.

Trading on the Boston Curb was broad and active, with prices irregular. Majestic was strong, gaining several points during the trading. Contact Copper was rather weak, while Rhode Island Coal was strong. Davis Daly was very weak, the price easing to seventy cents at the close.

Dealings on the London stock exchange were quiet to-day, but sentiment was cheerful. Home Rails advanced on news of the cotton strike settlement. Gilt edged investments were quiet. American stocks were firmer and Canadian Pacific had support. There was not much doing in foreigners and mines. Rubber shares were depressed.

Paris and Berlin bourses were quiet at the close.

Kentucky Legislature Asks Hearst to Address Session

FRANKFORT, Ky., Jan. 20.—A very high compliment was paid yesterday to William Randolph Hearst by the House of Representatives of the Kentucky Legislature, when the House passed unanimously a resolution inviting Mr. Hearst to come here during the session, when it is convenient for him to do so, and make an address before the assembly.

Kentucky is expected to be the battleground for the Democratic nomination for the presidency this year.

One of the most agreeable features of the invitation to Mr. Hearst is that it is non-partisan, being extended alike by Democrats and Republicans.

An effort will be made to get Mr. Hearst to come to Frankfort about the middle of February, and he will be given a splendid reception. The distinguished men in the Democratic party from all sections of the State will assemble here to meet him.

STATE ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

The Underground Electric Railways Company of London has absorbed the London General Omnibus Company, and this means a consolidation of the transportation system of the British capital. Sir Edgar Speyer does not deny that the purpose is a monopoly. Underground, omnibus and tramway service will all be under one control, and to effect the merger there will be created £1,260,730 6 per cent. debentures, 6 per cent. income bonds to the same amount and £60,035 in shares of 1s. each.

It is reported at Newport that the New Haven road may buy the Jamestown & Newport Ferry Company. By laying a track from Kingston to Saunderstown and using a ferry from the latter town, it could reduce the running time from New York to Newport by an hour.

$ $ $

The advance in Rutland stock led to the Wall Street report that the New York, New Haven & Hartford road, which acquired a half interest with the New York Central in the other line last year, is buying up all the minority stock on the market in accordance with President Mellen's general policy. It has been expected that the New Haven would take over the New York Central interest in Rutland.

In regard to the money market it is now stated that German bankers are not manifesting much desire to get funds in this country, where there is an astonishing plethora. It was expected that the big offering of bonds by the imperial German and Prussian governments would provide an immediate opening for some millions of American money. But it appears that the Germans, while willing to extend loans obtained a few months ago in New York, are not willing to pay so much for accommodation as they did in the Fall of 1911. If German loans of that period are repaid, it will add to the money surplus which is at present perplexing financiers.

$ $ $

It is believed by insiders in New York that the advance in Hill stocks and Chicago, Burlington & Quincy joint 4 per cent. bonds is due rather to general investment buying than to immediate retirement of the bonds in question and the transfer of the Burlington, now owned jointly by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific roads, to the Great Northern alone.

The stockholders of the Suncook Valley road have voted to lease the line for two years only, to the Concord & Montreal, a part of the Boston & Maine system. Last month the stockholders voted to run their road independently when notified that the old rental price would be cut. Then President Mellen raised his price a little, and the Suncook stockholders have decided to accept the latest terms for a short lease.

SOLDIERS CUT WAY OUT OF GUARDHOUSE

Walter Furtaw and Harry E. Law, privates in the United States army, stationed at Fort Banks in Winthrop, who were in the guard house there as deserters, cut their way through the eight-inch wall and escaped, only to be captured in East Boston, on their way to this city.

The only tools the men had were a knife and a broom handle. With these they chipped a way through the plaster wall and made a hole large enough to crawl through. They were captured by Sergeant John C. McDonald and Patrolman Charles W. Griffin of the East Boston police division.

PROMENADE CONCERT AND DANCE OF CADETS

Six hundred attended the promenade concert and dance of the First Corps Cadets, M. V. M., at the Columbus avenue armory last evening, many men from other commands and a number of society people being present. There was an excellent concert by the Cadet Band, under the direction of John B. Fielding. The following committee was in charge: Lieutenant E. H. Clapp, chairman; Corporal W. J. Battilana, secretary and treasurer; Sergeant Benjamin L. Knapp, Sergeant Elias Field, Sergeant George H. Farwell, Corporal David B. Keniston, Private Raymond B. Hemenway, Private John S. Pickett, Private Harold C. Read, Private Edward S. Burns.

$25,000 BLAZE AT CHURCH OF NATIVITY

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—Fire to-day partially destroyed the historic old Roman Catholic Church of the Nativity on Second avenue. The Rev. Father D. J. Reilly, the pastor, clad only in an overcoat and pajamas, risked his life by rushing into the burning building and saving the sacrament. Fire Chief Kenlon had all the electric lights turned on, and fought the flames while the interior was a blaze of light. The loss was $25,000.

FUNERAL RITES FOR B. W. WELLS

The ushers were James W. Bowen, Robert S. Burgess, Eugene H. Clapp, David H. Coolidge, James N. Dais, Leslie Hastings, Ira C. Hersey, George A. Hopkins, John L. Kelley, John L. Nichols, Charles G. Saunders, Clifford D. Sawyer, William J. Smith, James B. Sturgis, Charles Warren and Andrew G. Weeks.

BROKEN MAIN CAUSES FLOOD

The main water pipe of the town of Swampscott burst on Humphrey street, sending a stream sixty feet into the air, damaging an automobile, flooding stores, cellars and streets, and causing a loss estimated at $2,500.

An automobile owned and driven by Henry F. Miller of New York city, who was accompanied by his wife and two daughters, stopped near where the pipe burst. Mr. Miller was cranking up his machine when the accident happened. He and his family were drenched and the shower of water, stones and other debris all but wrecked the automobile.

The water flooded the store of George Holder, causing damage of $500.

Many people waiting at a nearby corner for electric cars were drenched.

The firemen were called to pump the water out of the flooded cellars.

ARREST WITNESS IN BUTTS CASE

Ernest Abbott, wanted as a witness for the defence in the trial of Harry H. Butts, the negro who shot and killed a man named Williamson in the South End as a result of jealousy, and who has been acting as a guard over Clarence V. T. Richeson in the Charles street jail, was to-day arrested and held in $500 bail so that he would be on hand when the Butts murder trial starts on January 29. It was said at the courthouse that this was the first time in the memory of court officers that the State had taken into custody a witness for the defence. Abbott is said to have carried stories to Butts about Williamson and Butts's wife that led to the shooting.

NEW YORK FINANCIER DECORATED BY KAISER

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—It became known in Wall Street to-day that James Speyer had received from the German Emperor the decoration of the Red Eagle of the second class, which was sent to him through the German Ambassador in Washington. He is the third New Yorker to receive this order, the others being J. P. Morgan and August Schnabel. The decoration was conferred on Mr. Speyer, it is understood, in recognition of the long and honorable career of his family in national and international financial affairs, and also in appreciation of his efforts to promote more cordial relations between Germany and the United States.

COUPON BOOK EXPLAINS ALL

Speaking of the weather, high cost of living and other troubles, do you know what the official weather signals are?

The government uses a system of flag [in]dicate the expected atmospheric conditions, signals for weather warnings. These include fair, storm, cold wave, heat, etc.

The storm warnings, in particular, are invaluable to shipping. They are displayed along the coast for the benefit of seafarers. The ordinary citizen, snug in his home, does not appreciate rightly what this weather signal system means to those along our dangerous coasts.

Then there are whistle signals, which may be used when thick weather makes it impossible to see the flags. There are combinations of long and short whistles, just as there are combinations of flags, to give various weather warnings.

The entire system is most interesting, as well as necessary. It is explained in detail, with illustrations of the flags and a key to the combinations, in the Modern Universal Encyclopedia. It is only one of the thousands of educational subjects covered in concise and accurate manner by this handy book of reference.

The Modern Universal Encyclopedia is one of the three books of reference included in the new coupon offer of the AMERICAN. Clip these coupons and get the books. They may save you real money some time.

MAN HUNT AT NAVY YARD BALL

More than a hundred guests at a naval ball given by Commandant Coffman of the Charlestown Navy Yard were held prisoners in the yard for nearly an hour, early to-day, while guards, armed with rifles, conducted a search for two prisoners who had escaped from the guard house after striking a sentry over the head with a rolling pin.

The fugitives were caught a short time later at the points of revolvers. One man was taken in Somerville and the other in Cambridge. The break was one of the most daring that has ever taken place at the Navy Yard and created much excitement.

The ball was a brilliant affair and the guests included scores of prominent Boston society people and naval officers. The last waltz had been played and some of the guests had left for their homes. The women were being assisted into their wraps by their escorts when four shots in rapid succession echoed through the yard.

Immediately everything was confusion. Officers hurried from the commandant's house. Outside in the yard guards ran back and forth not knowing which way to turn. The officers quickly ordered a systematic search of the yard.

Dancers Held Up.

Captain Chamberlain, commandant of the prison, took charge. He ordered every gate and door locked and barred and the guards at each doubled. The guests at the ball found themselves prisoners as nobody was permitted to enter or leave the yard.

The shots came from the direction of the prison. Several of the guards ran in that direction and on the ground near the mess quarters they found Sentry Finch unconscious, with blood streaming from an ugly wound on the side of his head.

Finch was revived and told Captain Chamberlain that Frederick G. Burke and Kenneth F. Sharpe, two of the prisoners had escaped. All the guards who had not responded at the sound of the shots were ordered out of their quarters and the yard searched.

Burke and Sharpe were deserters who had re-enlisted under false names. They were serving sentences in the guard house and were employed as cooks. They were regarded as trustworthy and permitted free run of the galley, from which all other prisoners were barred. A door that is never locked leads from the galley into the yard. Finch's post covered that door. The prisoners had evidently planned their escape for they waited until Finch reached a spot opposite the door, then leaped out and one struck Finch over the head with a rolling pin.

Fires at Prisoners.

Finch, in falling, caught a glimpse of Burke and Sharpe as they dashed away in the darkness. Finch whipped out a revolver and fired four shots at the fleeing prisoners, but the blow on the head affected his aim, and all four shots went wide of their mark. The sentry attempted to pursue the pair. He struggled to his feet, only to drop back to the ground again insensible.

When a complete search of the yard failed to unearth even a glimpse of the two men, Captain Chamberlain notified the police of Boston and all the surrounding cities and towns to be on the lookout for the pair. He furnished the police with a description of Burke and Sharpe, and the entire Charlestown police station force was detailed in the hunt. Every street and alleyway in the Charlestown district was gone over carefully, but no clew to the whereabouts of the prisoners was found.

In the meantime Lieutenant Charles F. Woodman of the Somerville police had transmitted the orders of Captain Chamberlain to all the men on the Somerville force and Patrolman Edward M. Davies spied the pair on the tracks of the Fitchburg Division of the Boston & Maine Railroad near the Somerville station. He waited at the Dana street crossing until they came along and then confronted them with a revolver.

Take Burke to Somerville.

At the sight of the policeman Sharpe turned and fled along the tracks in the direction of North Cambridge. Burke would liked to have done likewise but Davies told him that if he moved he would fill him full of lead. This took all the ambition out of Burke and he marched to the Somerville police station, where he was locked up.

Lieutenant Woodman then telephoned to Lieutenant William H. McMenimen at station No. 4 at North Cambridge, and told him to be on the lookout for Sharpe. McMenimen sent Patrolman Patrick H. McNamara to head Sharpe off. McNamara reached the junction of Beach and Massachusetts avenue, North Cambridge, just in time to see Sharpe coming up from the railroad tracks.

McNamara drew his revolver and advanced toward Sharpe. The latter saw the glint of the steel and threw up his hands. He was taken to the Cambridge police station.

The Navy Yard authorities were notified of the capture of the prisoners and sent a detail of marines, who brought Burke and Sharpe back to the Navy Yard. They will probably be compelled to face a court-martial for the attack upon Sentry Finch, which is punishable by a heavy sentence.

The guests were detained in the yard until it had been determined that Burke and Sharpe had escaped over the Chelsea street wall. The women, frightened at first by the shots, tok an active interest in the hunt and many waited about in the yard, hoping they would see the men taken.

PIANO WAREROOMS
395 BOYLSTON ST.
BARGAINS in nearly 200 pianos, new and second hand. We trade DIRECTLY with the public without the intervention of "canvassers." See the splendid line of new pianos by various makers we offer at $150, $175, $200, $225, $250; payable $10 down and $5 per month; used instruments taken in exchange. Remember, there are factories turning out pianos which they sell to dealers for $70 to $85. We know of some dealers and canvassers who try to get from $250 to $300 for these same pianos. Protect yourself against such methods by relying upon an old, established house that GUARANTEES the RIGHT value in all its transactions. We believe in "one price to all" and give the same inducements to the humblest buyer as to the most expert. Every one invited to inspect our offerings which, at the prices marked, we believe are unequalled in this market. Established 1863. Always under the same management. HENRY F. The Catholic Church Is a Great Republic—The First of the Great Republics

And the Well-Deserved Honors Proposed for Cardinal O'Connell Are the Results of Republican Government Within the Church

Copyright, 1912, by American-Journal-Examiner

To understand the long life, the power that has lasted through centuries, the purpose that continues unchanged as men come and go within the great Catholic Church, IT IS NECESSARY TO REALIZE THAT THAT CHURCH WAS THE FIRST GREAT REPUBLIC OF OUR ERA, AND THAT IT IS A GREAT REPUBLIC NOW.

In the day of savage kings and despotic rulers, in the later days of refined monarchs and government slightly less brutal, the Catholic Church, an organization of spiritual as well as temporal government, had an immense advantage over every government on earth.

The kings and the emperors came, died, and each successor was a matter of accident. The child that happened to be born first inherited the crown. Because of the weakness due to accident of birth, dynasties and kingdoms and empires changed, melted and disappeared.

But the Catholic Church went forward through the centuries steadily, gaining in power, because from the first the government of the church was a republican form of government.

No accident of birth determines any important fact in the government of the church.

The Cardinals, a body of learned and powerful men, themselves selected because of special ability and regardless of birth or rank, elect in their turn the Pope to rule the church—just as our Electoral College was established by the founders of this government to elect a President.

When some feeble king was succeeding to the throne and the power of France, when some weakling through the accident of birth was made ruler of Spain, or of England, the ablest man within the church was chosen to rule.

A boy that had been the humblest and poorest of children, tending animals in the field, sleeping on a hard bed or no bed, while the boy emperor was in his palace, lived to see himself upon the throne of St. Peter and to see the emperor grown to manhood humbly submissive without the gate.

That was the result of republican government within the Catholic Church. The ablest man was chosen for the highest honors and responsibilities. And many a royal and imperial accident of birth throughout the centuries knew what it was to bow his head to the chosen ruler of the church, chosen because of ability, knowledge, devotion, and chosen on the basis of true republican government.

Cardinal O'Connell, who returns to America with the highest honor save one that the church can confer, illustrates in our day the republican methods of the Catholic Church—methods that date far back before the day when the proud German Emperor stood for hours in the snow, penitent and submissive, outside the Pope's door at Canossa.

Greeted with enthusiasm and affection by his own people, welcomed with respect and pleasure by the entire citizenship, Cardinal O'Connell represents in his person the republican system of government that has done so much to make the Catholic Church the greatest useful power in the world.

Boston's cardinal-bishop began life humbly. He was studious and earnest from his childhood; he was but a poor boy, sprung from the people, his father had no fortune to give him except intelligence and character.

To-day William O'Connell stands with the princes of the church, one of a governing body intensely interesting, dramatic and marvellous in its long history.

It is well for those that read about him in this country to know that the church which has made him a Cardinal has been for many centuries as truly republican in government as the system that puts a President in the White House at Washington.

It is encouraging to all of those that believe in republican government and who want to believe that this nation, properly managed, can endure to realize that the greatest, oldest, most powerful organization in the world is the great Catholic Church, BASED SPIRITUALLY UPON THE ROCK, ST. PETER, AND MATERIALLY UPON A REPUBLICAN FORM OF GOVERNMENT, A TRUE DEMOCRACY, RECOGNIZING NO BIRTHRIGHT, NO ARISTOCRACY, OTHER THAN THAT OF INTELLECT, CHARACTER AND DEVOTION.

Every honor done to Cardinal O'Connell on his return will be an honor reflecting back upon the city which confers it. It is genuinely American to honor any man, born of the people's stock, who has risen to exalted eminence before the world, owing his exaltation to his own brain force, character and loyalty to duty.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

ANOTHER SAILORS' FRIEND.

Editor AMERICAN:

I am very much interested in the articles printed in the AMERICAN in regard to the boys of the United States Navy, and I want to say a few words for the bluejacket myself. I have met civilians, and I have met bluejackets, and can truly say that I have always been treated with far more respect by the latter.

Why will people put them all down, because of what a few do? They are not all alike. I think there are some of the nicest boys in the United States Navy that ever lived, and they are the ones who fight for us, and are always ready to do their duty at any moment. I am not a sailor's sweetheart, but I hope to be some day, as there are none like the good, kind sailor boys. A sailor's friend is my friend.

THE BOYS IN BLUE

Editor AMERICAN:

I have been reading some of the notes in the AMERICAN about our bluejackets and I would like to say a few words in their favor. I am an army girl and I have always lived in an army post. I have been in nearly ever State in the Union and I wish to say that the sailors and soldiers are the best specimens of gentlemen that you would wish to find.

I would be ashamed to call myself an American if I did not speak up for them, and I can truthfully say that I am proud of them. Why should they not be respected just as much as any civilian. Do they not protect our rights? What would we do without them? Then let us all give three cheers for Uncle Sam's brave boys. They have my best wishes with them wherever they go.

The Lawrence Strike, By Louis D. Brandeis
The Strikers at Lawrence, By John Golden

(International President United Textile Workers of America.)

In To-morrow's Sunday AMERICAN

The big textile strike at Lawrence, with its militia and mob accompaniment, broken heads and bloodshed, has made the people of New England THINK as no other happening in this section of the country has done in many years.

The one fact, that the militia of the State had to be called out in an attempt to preserve peace in law-abiding New England, and that men were stabbed with bayonets while doing what they were led to believe was right, shows that there is something RADICALLY WRONG in the textile industry, at least.

What's the matter? Why these policemen with drawn revolvers and soldiers with levelled guns?

There is an answer and a MIGHTY IMPORTANT answer to these queries.

The Sunday AMERICAN to-morrow is fortunate in getting a reply to these inquiries from two of the most prominent men in connection with social matters in America. They are John Golden, International President of the United Textile Workers of America, and Louis D. Brandeis, the noted Boston lawyer and expert on labor matters.

The REAL CAUSE of the Lawrence strike and the Lawrence riots and bloodshed will be told exclusively in to-morrow's Sunday AMERICAN by these two distinguished speakers and writers.

President Golden tells in his article what will do more for the peace and prosperity of Lawrence than a hundred regiments of militia. He tells how the mills may be saved from strikes and the city saved from strikers.

Mr. Brandeis tells why the mill operatives are practically helpless and why Americans have been driven out of the mills.

These two articles will be the most valuable industrial proclamations that have ever been issued in New England, where they were never MORE NEEDED THAN RIGHT NOW.

Every man and woman in New England is directly or indirectly affected by the success or failure of the textile industries of this country. To them the articles of Mr. Golden and Mr. Brandeis will prove of absorbing interest.

His First Sled

By MINNA IRVING

Of odds and ends from the pile of junk
That lay in the tool-house shed,
Scraps of iron and bits of wood,
I built me a rousing sled.
I worked at night by a lantern's light,
And the rudder was placed with care,
And when it was done the first soft flakes
Were afloat in the frosty air.

It snowed and melted and froze again,
Till the hillside shone like glass,
And offered a track for a boy's delight
No glacier could surpass.
The world was a wonder of carven pearl,
With a turquoise overhead,
And down the side of the crystal slide
With the speed of the wind we sped.

There were sleds behind, there were sleds before,
Yellow and red and blue,
And some were battered and bare of paint,
And some wore gaudy and new,
And some were rakish, and broad and long,
And some were slender and small;
But the little old sled I built myself
Was the one that beat them all.

To every reader of to-morrow's Sunday AMERICAN will be given FREE, for the coupon, a splendid portrait, 16x22 inches, same size as this page, of His Eminence Cardinal O'Connell made from his latest photograph taken in Rome. The portrait will be printed in duo-colored ink on heavy cameo paper, and will be well worth framing.
